Urges Labor Take Action to Oppose Dictatorships of All Kinds

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9.—(UP)—The American Federation of Labor convention today passed resolutions condemning the sales tax as the "most iniquitous of all taxes."

It urged that "taxation be based on the ability to pay, ie, income and inheritance taxes levied by the government."

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9.—(UP)—Walter M. Citrine, president of the International Federation of Labor, today charged that Fascism and Nazism has crushed trade unionism and reduced citizens to the status of serfs in Italy and Germany.

One of the most potent ways to combat such Fascist dictatorships is by boycott, Citrine, also general secretary of the British trades union congress, told the American Federation of Labor convention.

Throughout his address, Citrine used the word "Fascism" to apply to various dictatorships existing in the world today.

Its record everywhere, he said, according to a prepared copy of the address, is "one of repression, brutality and terrorism."

"The rise of Fascism Italy, as in Germany, has been accompanied by a reign of terror and the total killed during the reign could not be less than 2000," said the British labor leader.

But for the financial help of reactionary employers Fascism would not have been possible in either country, he said. In return the employers benefited by elaborate use of state subsidies.

Wages in Italy, the speaker said, are the lowest of any of the

BEET SUGAR PLANT TO BE CONSTRUCTED

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 9.—(UP)—Plans for the construction of a $1,500,000 beet sugar refinery plant near Clarksburg, Sacramento county, were confirmed today by H. A. Benning, Ogden, Utah, vice president and general manager of the Amalgamated Sugar company.

The plant will be located in the center of the valley sugar beet district. Benning said he had been notified that AAA officials will increase by 10,000 acres the allowance sugar beet acreage in northern California when the plant is constructed.

Construction will start at once to give employment to approximately 200 men, it was announced.

VANDERBILT MAID ON WITNESS STAND

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(UP)—Maria Calliot, French maid who told of alleged incidents in the private life of Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, continued today at the hands of Nathan Burkan, counsel for Mrs. Vanderbilt who is seeking to regain custody of her 10-year-old daughter from her sister-in-law, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

Both public and press were again excluded by Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew, who warned all parties that they would be held in contempt of court if they divulged any of the testimony. The judge fears publicity might hurt the child's future.

INDICTMENT OF HAUPTMANN IS PARLEY TOPIC

New Jersey and New York Officials Confer Preparatory to Acting

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 9.—(UP)—New York and New Jersey officials conferred with Gov. A. Harry Moore at 2 p. m. to discuss the early extradition of Bruno R. Hauptmann from the Bronx to this state to stand trial on charges of murdering Charles A. Lindbergh jr., Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf state police head, announced today.

New Jersey authorities, moving swiftly to get custody of the unemployed German carpenter held in the Bronx for extortion, invited Bronx County District Attorney Samuel Foley and several assistants to the conference.

The Bronx county men met with Moore, Schwarzkopf, New Jersey's attorney general, David T. Wilentz, and Assistant Attorney General Joseph A. Lanigan, the police superintendent, said.

Hauptmann was indicted by the Hunterdon county September grand jury yesterday.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who identified Hauptmann by his voice as the man in St. Raymond's cemetery the night the $50,000 ransom money was paid, appeared briefly before the jury.

District Attorney Samuel Foley of Bronx county, New York, where Hauptmann is under indictment for extortion and where presently he is held, announced that he would aid in Hauptmann's extradition in every possible way. James M. Fawcett, Hauptmann's attorney, said he would fight extradition to the "last ditch."

The Hunterdon county murder indictment was so drawn legally that Hauptmann would almost certainly be doomed to the electric chair if convicted. It made no mention of the crime of kidnapping because under New Jersey law the death penalty would not be mandatory if it was proven the baby died of accident. But by contending the kidnaper was committing a "burglary" when he stole into the Lindbergh home, death of the baby, whether by accident or design, becomes legally murder.

S. A. RIVER DEVELOPMENT CO. REFUSES TO COOPERATE WITH COUNTY BOARD OVER SURVEY

THE SANTA ANA River Development company, which represents both the Anaheim Union Water company and the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company, was on record today refusing to co-operate with the board of supervisors in making a joint re-survey of the Santa Ana river in an effort to co-ordinate interests in an attempt to secure government aid on a water conservation and flood control plan for Orange County.

Further progress in the interests of harmony within Orange county was retarded by the action of the water development company, which adopted a resolution refusing to work with the supervisors, as directors of the Orange County Flood Control district, by appointing an engineer to work with an engineer to be named by the supervisors in making the re-survey. The water companies offered the joint survey plan to the supervisors in the first place.

The development company based its refusal upon an adverse ruling of the Riverside superior court which closed an important source to the company in the Corona area by granting an injunction against the pumping of water by C. E. Lillibridge for sale to the Orange county water companies. The injunction was granted to the Corona Foothill Lemon company.

A resolution adopted by the development company explaining its position was received today by Chairman Willard Smith of the board of supervisors in response to a letter he sent to the company asking them to co-operate in the proposed re-survey.

In his letter to the company, Chairman Smith said it had been brought to the attention of the supervisors by committees and individuals representing many water companies and water users in the Santa Ana basin of Orange county, that there is reasonable ground to believe that substantial aid can be obtained from the federal government toward the erection of a dam on the Santa Ana river in accordance with the plan submitted by G. A. Elliott and associates to the Orange County Flood Control District.

The Anaheim Union Water company had filed with the supervisors a resolution which said that the company was convinced that there is a great danger of irreparable loss and damage to the water supply of the Anaheim Union Water company and the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company by the construction of a dam as proposed by the Elliott plan.

The resolution further specified that if an engineer selected by the

Pole-Sliding Cat Works On Schedule

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Oct. 9.—(UP)—Goofy, the pole-sliding cat of fire station No. 2, performed on a regular schedule today.

Persons wanting to see Goofy leap unassisted from the second floor opening, and whizz down the brass rail to the first floor, will have to call at the station at three, five or eight p. m.

The schedule was adopted because Goofy, eager to please the crowds at all times, slid so much and so fast that he burned his fur.

M'ADOO CALLED AS WITNESS IN BRANION TRIAL

United States Senator is Subpoenaed in Los Angeles Fraud Case

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—(UP)—L. U. S. Senator William Gibbs McAdoo was under subpoena today to appear as a defense witness at the forthcoming trial of R. C. Branion and eight others, charged with defrauding the government in the administration of the civil works program in California.

Baldwin Robertson, attorney for the former CWA head, in requesting the subpoenas from Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick said it was his purpose to attempt to show that "politics" was behind the indictment of Branion and his co-defendants.

Subpoenas also were issued for U. S. Attorney Pierson M. Hall, John R. Elliott, local Democratic leader, and W. H. Evans, Democratic candidate for governor in the recent primary.

The subpoena for McAdoo instructed him to produce in court a telegram purportedly sent by him to Postmaster General James A. Farley and two letters purportedly sent to him.

PARLIAMENT OF SPAIN CALLED INTO SESSION

Stern Measures to Be Taken by Law Makers to Put Down Revolt

MADRID, Oct. 9.—(UP)—Members of the Cortes (parliament) gathered today for a session expected to bring stern measures to suppress the stubborn, if waning, socialist revolt.

Deputies arrived at the Cortes under protective guns of soldiers and policemen. There was some expectation that still active guerrilla forces of socialists might try to attack the building.

Sabotage of fresh foods added to the unpleasantness of the revolt for townspeople. Attacks by small groups of socialists continued.

In the north, where the revolt in its most serious phase persisted, soldiers and marines were co-operating to oust the rebels in the few small towns where they held out.

A thousand members of the Spanish foreign legion arrived at Barcelona from Morocco, and it was believed that 3000 more would arrive soon on the north coast to work inland to join the troops advancing northward through Asturias.

Premier Alejandro Lerroux was expected to ask the Cortes for continued extraordinary powers to crush disaffection.

Left Republican, as well as Socialist, deputies were expected to

DEVLIN IS NAMED TO RAILROAD BOARD

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 9.—(UP)—Governor Frank Merriam filled the vacancy of the state railroad commission today with the appointment of Frank R. Devlin, San Francisco attorney, who formerly served on the utility regulation body.

The appointment of Devlin is entirely non-political as it should be, the governor's statement said.

"Mr. Devlin is a registered progressive. He did not seek the appointment directly or indirectly. On the contrary I requested him to accept the appointment."

The new commissioner, named to complete the term of Clyde L. Seavey, resigned, was a member of the commission under Governor Hiram Johnson. He also served at one time as district attorney and superior judge in Solano county and in the state assembly.

MEXICAN FARMERS PROTEST THREATS

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 9.—(UP)—Mexico entered the prolonged controversy between American and Oriental farmers in the Salt River valley today by inciting an investigation into reports that Mexican laborers had been threatened.

E. E. Cota, Mexican consul here, said he was investigating reports that American farmers were intimidating Mexicans, employed by Japanese farmers. The reports purportedly originated in the Japanese consulate at Los Angeles.

The dispute, which has been marked by a series of bombings of Japanese farms, continued in court with the American faction scoring an important victory. A motion by counsel for eight Japanese farmers to dismiss charges of violating the state anti-alien law was overruled by Superior Judge Martin T. Phelps.

Dizzy Dean Victorious Over Tigers

St. Louis Drives Five Pitchers Out of Box Under Avalanche of Hits

NAVIN FIELD, DETROIT, Oct. 9.—(UP)—The St. Louis Cardinals won the world baseball championship today by overwhelming the Detroit Tigers, 11 to 0, in the seventh and final contest of the championship.

The Cardinals won the game in the third inning, counting seven times in that frame, off a procession of Tiger pitchers. In all the fighting Cards made seven hits in that inning, batting around with three to spare.

The game began and ended in that frame although the Cards went on to score two more in the sixth and another brace in the seventh.

At no time was Dizzy Dean in bad shape. After the seven run lead given him in the third inning he practically coasted the rest of the time. Men managed to get on bases, but when hits were needed to bring in runs, Dean tightened up and retired the side either by striking out the last man or causing the batters to non out.

A near riot in the seventh inning delayed the game.

Medwick who had collided with Owen, the Tiger third sacker took his place and the crowd boomed him, believing he had been unnecessarily rough in colliding with Owen. He was greeted with a hail of oranges, apples and other fruit. He retired out of distance while the groundskeepers cleaned up. Medwick returned and again was bombarded. Three times he did this and three times he was driven out of range.

After many minutes of delay Commissioner K. M. Landis and the two managers conferred with the result that Medwick retired from the game. Later he was escorted by a squad of five policemen to the St. Louis dressing rooms.

Dean allowed but six hits today while six Detroit pitchers were touched up for a total of 17 hits. Manager Mickey Cochrane of the Tigers retired in the ninth inning after playing through the entire game suffering from injuries received in the game yesterday when he collided with Paul Dean at first base.

The victory meant some $5000 to each player of the winning Cards and some $3300 to each of the losing Tigers.

Assassin Struck Down by Saber and Then Shot By Guards in Crowds

FOUR OTHERS KILLED

Queen Not With King When Killed Being En Route to Paris on Express

MARSEILLES, France, Oct. 9.—(UP)—King Alexander I, of Yugoslavia, and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou of France, were shot dead today by an assassin, precipitating a situation which may alter the political course of Europe.

Four others were killed and eight gravely wounded. The other dead were General George of France; General Alexander Dimitrijevitch, marshal of the Serbian court; a policeman and the assassin himself, one Petrus Kellemen, a young Croatian opposed to Alexander's dictatorship.

The wounded included Admiral Berthelot, French maritime prefect at Toulon, and members of the crowd, which broke into rioting after the shooting and were charged by police with sabers and batons. As was the case in the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand at Sarajevo in 1914, the assassin jumped on the running board of the official car in which King Alexander and Barthou were sitting side by side after the king's arrival on an important diplomatic mission to France.

Kellemen shouted, "Long live the king" and started firing bullets.

GOVERNMENT HOLDS SUSPECT AS SLAYER

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—(UP)—Federal authorities intervened today in the arrest of Harold Vermilyea, Ontario, Cal., fruit packer, by holding him as a suspect in the axe-murder last Thursday of his wealthy mother, Mrs. Nathaniel Vermilyea, at Belleville, Ont.

The suspect was removed from the jurisdiction of Ontario (Cal.) police by department of justice agents, acting on a fugitive warrant issued at the request of W. M. Gurney, local British consul. He was to be arraigned today before U. S. Commissioner David B. Head.

Capt. Bill Bright of the local sheriff's office said he had three witnesses who would deny Vermilyea was in northern California looking for work last week end. Vermilyea had insisted he could not have been in Canada when his mother was slain because he has not been out of California in 11 years.

JUDGE SEWELL TO FACE COURT TODAY

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—(UP)—Denied a parole, Superior Judge Harry F. Sewell was scheduled to receive a court hearing today on an affidavit accusing him of incompetence.

Conviction under the affidavit carries a possible "sentence" to a state hospital.

Sewell, who has persistently refused to resign from the bench, made a strong plea for parole from the psychopathic ward of General hospital when he appeared yesterday before Superior Judge Frank Lamberson of Tulare, sitting by assignment. Judge Lamberson, however, rejected the plea, based on the circumstances and because of the position Judge Sewell holds in the public eye and in legal circles, the visiting jurist said, "I feel it is best that he be kept under observation pending the hearing."

HARRY HOPKINS SAYS PROGRAM WILL CONTINUE

Bitterly Denounces Manufacturers for Attacks on Relief Plans

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(UP)—Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins indicated today that his organization's work relief program will continue as usual despite vigorous protests from the National Association of Manufacturers.

Hopkins denounced bitterly the organization which he declared had "fought every worthwhile advance in America."

The Manufacturers' association issued a statement Sunday to the effect that a pool of its membership revealed disapproval of any government competition with private industry even to supply relief for the unemployed.

"I am not surprised that the Manufacturers' association does not approve of the work relief program," Hopkins said. "It has fought every worthwhile advance in America."

AMERICAN GIRLS IN MADRID ISOLATED

MADRID, Oct. 9.—(UP)—A group of Americans, including Smith, Wellesley, Vassar and Connecticut college girls who are studying at the University of Madrid, were still confined to the foreign girls' residence of the university today.

Those in charge of the residence feared for their safety if they ventured into the streets of Madrid, with bullets apt to fly at any time.

Among American students at the university are: Elizabeth Buckingham, 907 Third avenue, Los Angeles; Elizabeth J. Priestly, 1702 Arch street, Berkeley, Cal.; Reginald Heber Gooden, 1801 South Manhattan Place, Los Angeles.

lets into his body. The chauffeur struck him and his revolver swept in an arc, hitting Barthou and others. Police began firing and the bullets went into the crowd, striking spectators.

Assassin Killed
Kleimen went down under bullets and a saber blow, and the mob trampled him in rage. The killer apparently had accomplices in the crowd. Two men were arrested and others were sought.

Alexander is succeeded by his son, Prince Petar II, who is at school in England. He will rule under a regency.

The queen was on route to Paris from Italy when the shooting occurred. She was supposed to have met the king at Dijon for a triumphal entry into Paris. Her train was stopped by signal in Italy and she was given the sad news.

President Albert Lebrun of France hurried to Marseilles to represent the government as chief mourner.

Cabinet Meets
The French cabinet was summoned into extraordinary session. The political consequences of the assassination probably will be far-reaching. France and Italy, long at odds, were about to enter into a political, military and economic pact. Yugoslavia, opposed to Italy and allied with France, was perturbed.

Alexander arrived in France on an important mission. It was believed Barthou had planned to persuade him to accept the Franco-Italian pact with good grace. A tremendous military display had been arranged to impress him with French strength and solidity.

Just before telephone service to Yugoslavia was suspended, it was indicated the regency for Prince Petar would be composed of his widowed mother and two others, one probably his uncle, Prince George. Petar must be proclaimed king within three days.

A post mortem revealed King Alexander had two bullets in his arm and two near the heart.

The king uttered no words before he died. Barthou's only words were: "Where are my glasses?"

The assassin belonged to a group of youthful political exiles who opposed Alexander's dictatorial methods in Yugoslavia.

As the assassin began firing bullets at the king, the chauffeur swung with his fist, knocking him backwards and causing subsequent bullets to go wide. One struck General George of the king's entourage, and another hit the Serbian military aide. The latter was understood to have been killed.

At least four bullets entered the king's chest and head. The only bullet to strike Barthou penetrated his arm and side.

The queen was not with the king, being en route to Paris on the Orient express through Italy.

Important Mission
The shooting occurred shortly after Alexander landed from a Yugoslav warship. His mission was considered so important that the harbor was filled with French warships, with the greatest of pomp on all sides. The minister of marine, Francois Pietri, went out on a cruiser to meet him, with airplanes soaring overhead.

Barthou waited ashore. The streets were lined with troops and band played military marches. The king was heavily guarded on all sides by secret police as he walked to the automobile.

The procession had hardly started when the tragedy occurred. The shots came so rapidly that only by quick action did a cavalry guard reach him and bring his saber down in a slashing blow on the gunman's head before the last bullet had been fired.

The crowd, in great excitement and anger, crushed the guards and flood control district and an engineering selected by directors of the Anaheim water company could meet and agree upon conditions additional to those contained in the Elliott plan, which would prevent loss of water or interference with the water supply of the Anaheim water company and Orange county by the construction and maintenance of a dam as proposed by the Elliott plan, then the directors of the Anaheim water company would not oppose the submission to the proper federal authorities of the plan as submitted by Elliott and his associates. The Santa Ana Irrigation company also sent the supervisors a similar resolution.

Now the water companies have the assassin against the royal car. Scores were trampled, including the assassin who fell under the guards' attack.

Nearly every nation in Europe was involved directly or indirectly in the king's visit. France's diplomatic supremacy was believed to be at stake, and with it, the French effort to form a pre-arranged encirclement of Germany.

Accord Near
Soon after Alexander's visit here, Barthou was due to have gone to Rome to confer with Premier Benito Mussolini. Mussolini announced on Saturday that a political and military accord was about to be signed with France.

So closely are the two events linked that it requires no official announcement to reveal that France is attempting to iron out the furrows in Italian Jugo-Slav relations before they assume the depth of trenches.

Barthou, the foreign minister, suffering mortal wounds in the stomach and with his arm broken by a bullet, struggled toward the assassin.

In vain, Barthou sought to shield the king with his own body and, possibly as a result of this effort, moved directly into the line of fire and was killed.

Cavalry, drawn up to provide an escort of honor for the visiting king, whirled their mounts and charged into the crowd from which the shots came just as a band finished playing the national anthems of the two nations.

Police fired into the crowd. A man believed to have been the assassin was killed and 20 others were wounded.

Greeted by Crowds
The tall, bespectacled monarch from the nearby Balkan nation had just landed with his entourage at the Marseilles dock. The foreign minister had greeted him in the name of France while a large crowd cheered.

The automobile procession, with the king and Barthou in the fourth car, moved slowly away from the dock.

As the royal car drew alongside the crowd, the shots were fired in rapid succession. At least half a dozen shots, and probably eight, splattered against the automobile.

The king raised slowly, then crumpled to the seat and slid to the floor of the car, bleeding profusely.

King Alexander, whose nation was created out of the post-war realignment in Europe, was known as a firm-handed ruler who resorted to dictatorial methods when divisions within his own nation threatened to break up the kingdom.

A tall, scholarly appearing man, the king encountered grave difficulties in the nation of Croats, Serbs and Slavs a few years ago. Jealousies and political bickering led to disturbances which severely handicapped his regime.

Takes Over Power
As a result, the king proclaimed a new constitution and took over power under dictatorial methods by which he sought to quell the internal disputes and end chaos.

He inherited from his Slavish parents a rocky throne and a definite inclination for army work. He used the latter many times to retain his kingship.

He was the only European monarch of modern times who led his own army into three wars—the two Balkan conflicts and the World war. As commander of the first army corps in 1912, he played an important part in the victories of Kumanovo and Bitolj, the battles which resulted in the retreat of the Turks.

When the Serbian army in 1918 broke through the Bulgar German lines and assured victory in that sector, Alexander was greeted as the liberator.

Unified Nation
His elementary education in continental languages, and his later years of service as a page in the Russian court impressed upon his mind the idea of a unified nation of Croats, Serbs and Slovenes.

indicated they do not favor the plan as proposed. The situation, then, is at a standstill until further negotiations can be made.

The Elliott plan was submitted by the supervisors to Francis Cuttle, present of the Riverside Water company who is representative for the government on National Rivers and Harbors Congress, but Cuttle refused to send the plan on to the government until interests in Orange county were united on a plan. In the meantime, the government has in its hands a plan proposing to construct a dam at the Jurupa site in Riverside county, which water authorities here say would be of no benefit to Orange county.

1928, and prepared to keep it in effect.

"I am really the only true Yugoslav: some day I hope to have a nation of Yugoslavians," he said. He assumed all responsibility for the experiment in royal dictatorship, the only one in Europe.

On June 8, 1922, Alexander married Princess Marie of Roumania, daughter of Ferdinand and Marie. Three sons, Petar, Tomislav, and Andrej were born of the union. The royal family is extremely popular in Yugoslavia. Many of the soldiers who fought with Alexander still remember that he found time to visit them frequently in their barracks.

In another letter, attributed to the federal attorney, Branion was referred to as "a rank Republican."

Branion's co-defendants in the case were formerly connected with the Los Angeles county organization of the CWA.

abstain from the meeting. The Republican groups announced aversion to the Lerroux government as an allegedly fascist one, at the same time the Socialist-Syndicalist-Communist combination declared the revolutionary general strike Thursday midnight.

The abstaining groups left three-fourths of the deputies to do the work.

There was wild shooting in Madrid for periods of an hour or two through the night.

Government spokesmen regarded the revolt as patently a failure. Operations of the rebels in Madrid and Barcelona, where Catalanian leaders tried to proclaim a separatist republic, had got down almost to a shoot-and-run basis by small groups.

The minister of interior said the army was consolidating positions in Gjon, Ujo and Mieres, where the rebels had seized strategic positions.

The latest estimate of deaths in the revolt was somewhat more than 400, with 1500 wounded and thousands under arrest, including the leaders of the Catalan government. The minister of interior denied it was possible deaths could reach into the thousands.

With a right wing government in office, and Jose Maria Gil Robles, the forceful right wing leader, dominating the government, stern action was expected in the Cortes against Socialists.

Police today stormed the home of Indalecio Prieto, one of the chief aides of Francisco Largo Caballero, the "Spanish Lenin." They were met by a fusillade of shots. They killed one man in the house and arrested Prieto's son, Luis, but did not find Prieto himself.

Pedestrian, Said Drunk, Walks Into Car, Slightly Hurt

Stepping in front of a car while allegedly intoxicated, Frank Sangas, 40, Fourth and Garfield streets, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday at Second and Main streets and was taken to the Santa Ana Valley hospital for emergency treatment.

Sangas walked into the car of William Sundston, 109 Wright street, according to police reports, and was knocked to the pavement. At the hospital, it was found that he was virtually uninjured and extremely intoxicated, according to officers. He was not arrested.

portedly sent to Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins. The telegram, according to the summons, was dated July 11, 1933, and read:

"I want a non-partisan administration of these funds. A Democratic state administrator can bring this about."

One of the letters, as quoted by the subpoena, read in part: "An excellent opportunity is offered under this kind of arrangement to secure a high degree of non-partisan cooperation." It was dated June 27, 1933. The second letter was said to contain the following excerpt:

"Why should he (Branion) get this? It would mean keeping many of our worthy Democrats from good positions, as all these positions will be filled by the Republican party workers as he has done in the past."

Hall was ordered to produce a letter he purportedly sent Richard F. Roper, executive secretary of the Democratic National committee, protesting Branion's appointment. The following excerpt was quoted in the subpoena.

"We think it imperative that Branion should by no means be appointed and that whoever is appointed should be a nominee of McAdoo. Party leaders here recommended William Evans. Will you try to get some action to prevent Branion's appointment, and secure Evans' appointment?"

In another letter, attributed to the federal attorney, Branion was referred to as "a rank Republican."

Branion's co-defendants in the case were formerly connected with the Los Angeles county organization of the CWA.

WILL ROGERS says:

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 9.—(To the Editor of The Register:) It was a great game, good to win, and tough to lose.

Detroit has been watching "Dizzy" when it should have been "Daffy." "Daffy" has walked in unobserved and packed off two arms full of bacon. "High-schoolboy" Rowe was mighty good, but old McGuffey's Third Reader Paul Dean was a little better.

It just shows you got to leave school earlier and take up your profession. Mickey Cochrane was a real hero, he got crippled, but went right on. And blocked 'em off that plate when they come with spikes blazing in his face. Mr. Ford wanted to bet me $40, but there ought to be a law against folks betting that can't afford it. Now about today. That's going to be a real game. Ball players say that Bill Hallahan pitched one of the finest games in this whole mess, then there is a chance of Dizzy coming back. He wants to get the Dean named back to "Dizzy" and "Daffy" instead of going through the winter with it "Daffy" and "Dizzy." Then for Detroit it looks like "Gen."

Crowder, who looked good in his game. I look for the series to go nine games, with a couple of ties in there.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

OPEN JACKSON HEADQUARTERS AND EXHIBIT

Featured by an educational exhibit of law enforcement work in Orange county, a "Logan Jackson for Sheriff" headquarters was opened today in Santa Ana at 116 West Fifth street. In the same building where the headquarters were maintained when Jackson was elected four years ago.

The offices will be under the supervision of Fred Schweitzer and regular business hours will be maintained. Among the exhibits being arranged are guns, knives, and other weapons used in homicide, burglaries and robberies in recent years here; photographs of the jail, record bureau, laboratories and equipment; and other displays showing the highlights of work accomplished by law enforcement officers of cities and counties.

"Apart from politics, this educational exhibit should have an appeal to school children and citizens of Orange county," Sheriff Jackson said. "Law enforcement is one of the most important functions of government today and taxpayers should take advantage of this opportunity to see the facilities with which their officers work. They will be enabled to gain a graphic picture, through photographs, of the new police radio, teletype, cell blocks, fingerprinting equipment and the many other phases of our work."

Literature, cards, stickers and other election material will be available at all times in the headquarters.

Revolutions to Be Topic for Forum

Dr. Frederick W. Roman, Los Angeles, will discuss the subject, "The Summer Revolutions at Berlin and Vienna" at a meeting of the Santa Ana Valley Forum tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the Santa Ana Hotel club.

The speaker spent considerable time in Europe this summer, and will discuss what impressions he gained as a result of his observations and studies. The meeting tonight is the first of the season.

RELOCATION OF DOG TO DEAD MASTER SHOWN

Another instance of a dog's devotion to its master was woven into the tragedy of an accident fatality on Huntington Beach boulevard Sunday evening, when a white poodle dog owned by Pedro Durate, 51, R. D. 1, Norwalk, covered disconsolately for many hours on the wreckage of Duarte's car.

The dog failed to realize that his master had been killed and the mother and daughter of the family taken into the Orange County hospital. It had no way of knowing that an inquest would be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. from the Dixon mortuary in Huntington Beach.

The little dog was forgotten in the excitement of the wreck and was not noticed until yesterday, when passing motorists found it sitting by the wrecked car. Up until last evening, the animal was still by the highway.

JAIL INMATE MAKES ATTEMPT TO END LIFE

Attempting to fulfill his promise "never to go on trial for robbery," Alfred Wells, 24, an inmate of the county jail pending his trial in superior court, last night swallowed 27 headache pills in a suicidal attempt but was rushed to the county hospital for treatment and was virtually recovered today.

Wells attracted considerable attention last Friday when he pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity, the first plea of this kind made here in many months. He was charged with robbery of Raymond Berney, Fullerton service station operator in a holdup on September 15.

Saving up headache pills over a period of days, while held in solitary confinement at the jail, Wells told authorities later he took all the tablets shortly before midnight last evening. Night jailer Tom Kinney found Wells in a stupor about 9 o'clock and called other jail officials, who took him to the hospital. Physicians pumped out his stomach and Wells was sufficiently recovered today to be returned to his jail cell, where he will be closely watched.

Two alienists, Dr. Franklin Van Meter, of Norwalk, and Dr. E. H. Williams, of Los Angeles, have been appointed to examine the defendant as to his sanity. Trial has been set for November 13, the insanity issue to be heard first, followed by the robbery trial.

Wells, armed with a gun, was alleged to have taken $15 from Berney in the holdup. He waived his preliminary hearing in the Fullerton justice court.

REPUBLICANS PLAN PRECINCT CAMPAIGN

Arranging to unite in carrying on precinct organization work and other campaign details, the Orange County Republican club and the Republican central committee discussed campaign plans at a meeting in Republican headquarters, Santa Ana, last evening.

The Republican club, with President Alvin Drummond presiding over the meeting, passed a resolution stating that the club would aid and support the central committee in all matters.

The precinct work will be carried on chiefly by the club members, with the central committee directing operations, it was understood.

Another meeting will be held next week, it was decided, but the exact date has not been fixed.

ACTIVE PARALYSIS CASES IN DECREASE

Although another new case of infantile paralysis was reported by health authorities last night, the number of cases in quarantine has dropped to 16, due to releases of recovered patients, it was announced today by Dr. K. H. Sutherland, county health officer.

The new case was that of Charles Pierce, 19, son of Mrs. Mary Pierce, of the Bristol Apartments, Santa Ana. The boy has been isolated at the county hospital.

FREEDOM FROM CONTROL TOLD BY M'KINNEY

The opposition of political bosses to his candidacy for district attorney proves absolutely that he is an independent candidate, not to be controlled, B. Z. McKinney declared last evening in a radio speech which depicted how the "sacred cow of finance" has controlled official life of Orange county for many years.

McKinney declared his own independence from control of any person, group or newspaper, refuting insinuations circulated by his opponents that, if elected district attorney, he would be controlled by the Santa Ana Register.

It has been intimated, said McKinney, that if he were elected, the Register publisher expected that a member of his family would receive an appointment to the district attorney's staff. Nothing could be farther from the truth, or more slanderous to both the candidate and the publisher, McKinney declared.

McKinney expressed his belief that the Register is supporting his candidacy because it approves of his policies and ideas of government. If anyone supports him for any other reason, or expects to receive from him anything to their interest other than efficient public service, they will be disappointed, he declared. Several other newspapers of the county also are supporting him, he pointed out.

"Bosses Aid Opponent"
"As a matter of fact, the real political bosses of this county are not on my side at all, but are supporting my opponent," said McKinney. "The very fact that I am an independent candidate has support, and the fact that they are not supporting me is the most clinching proof that I am an independent candidate, not to be controlled."

"Certainly one should not blame the gentlemen who have been used to controlling the politics of this county for not backing my candidacy. I have nothing to offer them, except a square deal, but I do assure them of that, if I am elected, even though they are not supporting me, I realize, however, that a square deal, and good law enforcement, are not enough, from their standpoint; it might even prove embarrassing at times."

Saying that the man whom the bosses put into office must always be ready to acknowledge dependence upon them and meet their demands, McKinney said that he did not "fit those specifications" and that he would not be "safe for any law violator, nor any type of political plundering."

Promises Tail-Twisting
"I somehow am sadly lacking in reverence for the sacred cows of finance. If the tail of the sacred cow needed twisting, I'd probably grab right on to it and yank," he said. "I fear that some inkling of my failings in this respect has reached the gentlemen who are so careful of their political fences," he added, pointing to the "big shot" endorsements of his opponent in the primary campaign.

"I am not saying to you, and I do not believe, that the men who have dominated Orange county politics for years are crooked or dishonest," he said. "They have loved power and they have used the public's money to pay private political debts, by placing their friends on the payroll. Fortunately for the people."

SAFETY WORK LEADER WILL SING ON RADIO

As plans moved forward rapidly today for the big outdoor program in the Santa Ana municipal bowl with which the California highway patrol will launch its state-wide safety campaign Thursday evening, attention was centered on a "pre-view" of the celebrated voice that is expected to draw crowds to the bowl.

George Stinson, the "singing cop" who has won national notice as a dramatic tenor, called by Mrs. Schumann-Heink the greatest tenor in the world, will sing tomorrow on the Al Pierce program, KFI, between 2 and 3 p. m. Stinson will be featured as the hour is devoted to a national broadcast, cooperating with the national safety campaign this month, and especially with the California highway patrol's safety campaign.

A gigantic parade, starting from Fourth and French streets, Santa Ana, at 7 p. m. Thursday, will set the actual program in motion. Marching from this point to the municipal bowl, the big parade will include more than 1000 Boy Scouts, and the drum corps of Santa Ana post, American Legion, also the county's SERA band, playing martial music as the parade "strut their stuff" along the main business thoroughfare.

Some of the significant features of the parade will be "horrible examples" of recklessness or carelessness in traffic; automobiles battered and twisted in collisions, preaching a mute sermon on safety.

All police departments of the county are sending delegations to march in the parade. The fine cooperation of these departments, according to Captain Henry Meehan, of the Orange county highway patrol squad, has made much easier the job of the highway patrol in keeping down the death list.

The general public is invited to march in the parade, as an indication of co-operation with the highway patrol and its safety policies.

At the bowl, where the parade is expected to arrive at 7:15 p. m., each police squad will march by the reviewing stand, where each police chief will be introduced to the audience as he marches past. During the ensuing program, there will be numbers by the SERA band, interspersed with the principal musical attraction of the evening, the numbers by George Stinson.

Captain Meehan will deliver a few interesting reasons why the death rate on highways is increasing. Captain Meehan, who has led it be known that he considers he has the finest squad in the state, also is known to be held in similar regard by his men. Between them, they captured and now hold the California highway patrol safety cup, awarded by Chief E. Raymond Cato to the county squad showing the greatest decrease in accident fatalities over the period of one year.

Citizenship Group President to Talk On Radio Tonight

A radio address explaining the purposes of the organization and calling attention to the need for election of proper law enforcement officials and passage of the local option measure will be delivered over KREG at 8:30 tonight, with the Rev. Joseph Reese, pastor of the Yorba Linda Friends church and president of the Christian Citizenship Council of Orange county, speaking.

The subject of the address by the president of the new organization which was formed by a representative body of citizens from all sections of the county after a preliminary meeting in Orange, is "Local Option, Law Enforcement and the Purposes of the Council."

This ring has had a certain sense of the ideals of good government. Were this not true, then we should deride to think of the graft and corruption that would have been possible."

"It is unnecessary for me to name these men," he said. "Most everyone in the county knows who they are. If they do not, it is a very easy matter to find out."

Richard Fraser Dies at His Home

Richard Fraser, 62, Villa Park contractor, died at his home in Villa Park late yesterday. Born in Missouri, he had lived here for about six months.

He is survived by his widow, Olive Francis Fraser, and one son, Charles R. Fraser, of Santa Ana. Funeral services will be held at the Smith and Tuthill Funeral home, Sixth and Broadway, Santa Ana, with the Rev. Walter Scott Buchanan, pastor of the First Christian church, officiating.

Entombment will be made in Fairhaven cemetery.

DEATH COMES UNEXPECTEDLY TO WM. M'KAY

William L. McKay, 54, well-known insurance and newspaper executive of Santa Ana, Orange and Balboa, died suddenly this morning from a heart ailment at his home, 310 Anade avenue, Balboa.

McKay was circulation manager of The Register during a 13-year period ending in 1928, and has been circulation manager of the Orange Daily News since that time. He was associated with the Riverside Enterprise circulation department for a short time and also worked for the Los Angeles Herald before coming to The Register. For one year, he was a Boy Scout executive in Modesto.

In addition to his newspaper activities, McKay has conducted an insurance agency at 213 North Main street for the past six years. He was a past exalted ruler of the Santa Ana Elks lodge and was a trustee of the organization at the time of his death. He was a former secretary of the Santa Ana Rotary club for about 10 years and held membership in the Shriners.

McKay had been ill for about a month with heart trouble and passed away shortly before noon today. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. La Vella McKay. Funeral arrangements, which have not been completed, call for Christian Science services from the Smith and Tuthill Funeral home.

EIGHT BOOKED FROM ANAHEIM, FULLERTON ON DRUNK CHARGES

Fullerton and Anaheim police each booked four men at the county jail yesterday to serve sentences for liquor law violations.

Fullerton police incarcerated Tony Dominguez, 21, La Jolla camp, for 30 days on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor, a misdemeanor. Three others were jailed for drunkenness, including Claude Brown, 21, Fullerton, 12-1-2 days; Joe Garcia, 23, Fullerton, and Ernie Rangel, 28, La Jolla, 5 days each.

The Anaheim defendants charged with drunkenness were Jake Bhajwansing, 63, 12-1-2 days; Paul Gomez, 28, Reggie Kerr, 32, and Fred E. Warner, 62, all of Anaheim, 5 days.

OFFICEHOLDERS BARRED FROM PRIVATE WORK

Private practice in the district attorney's office of Ventura county is prohibited in an ordinance passed by the Ventura county supervisors, according to word received here today. The same issue also has been raised in Orange county, where it is claimed by a group of attorneys that private practice by the district attorney and his staff has grown to large proportions.

The Ventura county supervisors took recognition of the problem in that county last week, adopting a county salary ordinance that forbids the district attorney or his staff to engage in private law practice; also prohibits the county surveyor and deputies from taking private work.

The ordinance further requires that the offices of county clerk, recorder, treasurer and auditor remain open during noon hours. These offices in Orange county all remain open during noon hours.

The question of private practice in the district attorney's office has been the subject of much comment and criticism here, because it has assertedly grown to wide proportions. More than a year ago, a committee of prominent attorneys was sent by the Orange County Bar Association to request

District Attorney S. B. Kaufman to discontinue private practice in his office, but the request was refused.

Recently a group of 81 attorneys of the county joined in a statement, showing the volume of private practice in the district attorney's office, stating that it was probably the largest private law practice in the county. The district attorney and his deputies are paid full-time county salaries.

CONCERN
A forbidden subject of consideration on the inside is the current invisible flight of capital from this country.

It is quite well known in the topmost financial circles that certain wealthy people have been purchasing foreign securities lately in increasing quantities. It is known specifically that there has been big American buying of British bonds and of Canadian stocks, chiefly those of gold mining companies.

There has been a notable tendency among trustees of big trust funds and estates to seek such outside investments. The extent of these operations cannot be estimated accurately, because they do not show up anywhere in records, except vaguely in the settlement of international balances.

The reason for the movement, of course, is timidity regarding the prospects for redistribution of wealth or inflation.

What can be done about it remains to be seen, but, for the present, it increases the inside pressure on the administration for permanent stabilization, a balanced budget and all the other things that the conservatives have been howling about.

ECONOMY
One thing that probably will be done about it is that, after the congressional elections, the administration undoubtedly will enter into another economy wave.

The basis for such a retrenchment movement already has been fixed up quietly backstage, in the thus far secret preparations for next year's budget. That budget will be made public after the first of the year, and the hope now is that it will contain some sharp cuts. At least, certain New Deal bureau chiefs already have been told to trim to the bone their budgetary demands for next year, and have done so.

The idea is to eliminate free-hand government, curtail the volume of waste and put things on a more business-like basis, meeting only the bare relief requirements.

This will not be enough to balance the budget, in the opinion of those who know the situation best. But it will allay fears and suspicions.

THIRTY-HOUR WEEK
The drive for the 30-hour week is getting hotter. It is bound to be the biggest thing at the coming session of congress.

You may recall that the original NRA idea was worked out by the New Dealers as a compromise with the 30-hour week agitators in congress. The administration is fast getting back into that original predicament again. It may have the 30-hour week rammed down its throat unless it works out a reorganization of the NRA on a compromise basis which will block the labor enthusiasts.

The highest New Dealers have shown some hesitancy about taking the big 30-hour jump all at once. They would like to approach the thing gradually by first establishing a 36-hour program to see how it works out.

ROOT

Statesmen, employers and labor leaders all prattle about the 30-hour week in general terms. They are purposely ducking the basic issue, which is whether workers are to be paid the same for a 30-hour week as they are being paid now for 40 hours or more.

And bystanders can see without looking that employers are not going to grant the 25 per cent wage increase which would be involved if they paid as much for 30 hours' work as they now pay for 40.

Indeed, if you pry inside the NRA, you will find that the real truth is that very few existing codes now have a flat 40-hour provision. In virtually all codes there are many exceptions (skilled workmen, etc.), and, furthermore, allowances are made for peak and tolerance production periods. Also, many codes have no overtime provision. Virtually no code provides against wage cuts where the work week is cut.

It is only natural that employers will use these loopholes to keep their total labor expenses down. They would not last long in business if they didn't. When forced to increase wages for one type of worker, they are able occasionally to make up that loss on another type of worker, not covered by the code.

NRA insiders never may admit it, but they have statistical proof of many instances in which the pay of skilled workers has been cut by industries working under the codes.

OPEN FIELD RUNNING

President Roosevelt has tried hard to avoid being tackled by the league candidates for the house speakership. The other day, he announced, 24 hours before leaving, that Mr. Byrns was to call on him, that Mr. Byrns was coming merely to invite him to visit the hermitage. The president did not want any speakership implications to be drawn from the Byrns call.

NOTES

Harvardites whisper that the real reason the university turned down the Hanfstaengl offer of a German scholarship was that Dean Pound of the law school accepted a degree recently from a German university and the public reaction in this country was not pleasing.

NEW YORK

By James McMullen

REGIMENTED
A New Yorker just returned from England says the president might fairly have carried his British parallel much further.

John Bull doesn't go much for alphabetical agencies but the British government is achieving a lot of New Deal results without them. Here are a few samples you never hear about on this side of the pond.

1. All the major industries are on a production quota system which is rigidly observed. This was brought about on the initiative of the board of trade (commerce) without benefit of codes or other legal machinery. It appears that British manufacturers were glad to cooperate in their common interest.

2. There are no formal price-fixing agreements—such as gasoline or cigarettes—sell at a uniform price from one end of the United Kingdom to the other. If a distributor tries to undersell his competitors he finds himself cut off from his source of supply and it doesn't do him a bit of good to squawk.

3. The British ministry of agriculture called the large milk distributors together and asked them what they considered a fair price to pay to farmers. They named a figure. The government official said it was too low and suggested they raise it. They did. Then he in turn told them what price they could charge to retailers. AAA methods minus AAA furor have placed the British farmer in a happier position than he has occupied in years.

4. If a British bus line wishes to compete with a municipally owned street railway it must pay the town the equivalent of the street-car fare for all the passengers it carries. Anything it takes in above that (in higher fares) it can keep. The utilities might make a note of that one.

5. A British truck owner who has been in business less than two years will not be allowed to renew his license unless he can produce contracts to prove he has enough business lined up to carry him at a profit next year. Older truck lines are not allowed to increase capacity without permission based on similar evidence. Overloading of trucks is severely punished. The English railroads warmly approve of the arrangement.

British industry and agriculture are actually far more strictly regulated than ours. But it's all been done without fuss or feathers and nobody thinks anything about it. Comment runs that if our government tried the same system the conservatives who are fond of praising England for not interfering with business would raise a yell that could be heard in the moon.

SILVER
No wonder our Chinese friends complain about our silver policy. In 1932 silver sold at 26 cents an ounce and the Japanese yen at 60 cents and the yen at 60 cents. Japanese competitors are a much tougher bunch for Chinese exporters to jump than ever before.

The world silver boom traceable to our policy threatens to disrupt Oriental trade completely. Even staunch New York silverites believe our government has gone far enough at present in boosting the price of the metal. They add that we can't reverse ourselves even if we wanted to because silver legislation is a one-way street. The treasury can buy the metal but it can't sell and its purchases to date have cut so deeply into the available supply as to assure a bull market in the metal for some time to come.

REPRISAL
Most financial sharps agree that the cheap Japanese yen is the villain which is holding up recovery by preventing a rise in the international price level. The cut-throat competition of one Japanese price against another to plague exporters—and even domestic producers—of all the manufacturing nations.

A New York expert suggests that our government has an effective reprisal at hand any time it cares to use it. A prohibitive tariff on silk would knock the daylight out of Japan's most important item of foreign trade. This might not alter Japanese monetary policy but at least it would minimize its effects by sharply reducing the amount of yen exchange in circulation. Also it would restrict Japanese cotton imports from the United States—which form the basis of her second largest industry. It's understood that this idea is being seriously studied in official quarters.

RAILS
Railroad circles are feeling a little more chipper these days. They confidently expect the interstate commerce commission to allow them a seven per cent rate increase on most freight classifications.

The only cricket in the cream is that grains and coal may be exempted. That would amount to leaving the wheels off an automobile. But the roads still hope to

SALVATION IN JESUS. PASTOR SAYS IN TALK

EL MODENA, Oct. 9.—At El Modena Friends church Sunday evening, the pulpit was occupied by the new pastor, the Rev. J. S. Sorenson. As a lesson he read Proverbs 1: 24-33, and part of the verse in Genesis 6: 3, "And the Lord said, My spirit shall not always strive with man." He said in part:

"Jesus used in much of His preaching and teaching, the material things. He wanted them to understand. He spoke in parables and used the things they were familiar with. Nothing is safe in this world; we must trust the Lord, for outside of Him there is nothing safe. People have trusted in money and houses, they have been all prepared for a rainy day, and they have lost everything."

"As far as finances were concerned they had nothing left. People have had wealth enough to build a town and yet at this hour they have nothing. Money did not bring them salvation. We think sometimes if we could just get hold of some, but there is coming a day when we must face eternity. Money is not true riches; it can take wings and fly away."

"There were four classes of passengers on the 'Titanic' and they each had their own places. They were supposed to remain there. When the news came the first class mingled with the third and the second with the fourth. All class distinctions were lost sight of. There was but one salvation for all classes. No special life boats had been provided for the rich. In fact they did not have near enough life boats when the use of carrying life boats when it comes to salvation. Death brings all men to the same level."

"Many people are going through life today and feel that they will get by somehow. They guess they don't need Jesus Christ. Destruction came to the 'Titanic' when they hadn't expected it."

"And so we, as we journey, need to make preparation. This world is a sinking vessel, there is nothing we can build on but God. Salvation is in Jesus, and without Him, there is none."

SIDE LIGHTS

Many corporations take the threat of a levy on surpluses seriously despite Senator Harrison's kind words about no additional taxes. This will be a factor in larger dividends this fall and winter.

Insiders expect an "inspirational statement" from Washington in a few weeks declaring that the dollar is de facto stabilized.

Wall street is pained at the securities and exchange commission's hard-boiled attitude toward the BMT bonds that were sold orally to duck federal registration requirements. The boys were just too ingenious for their own good.

DR. DUNNING IN FIRST SERMON OF NEW SERIES

ORANGE, Oct. 9.—Greatly increased congregations were present yesterday at the First Methodist Episcopal church for the opening services of "booster month."

The morning sermon by Dr. James Edwin Dunning, the minister, was on "The Meaning of Faith." In the evening Dr. Dunning gave the first of a series of expository addresses on the gospel of Mark.

With the general theme, "Jesus and Current Events." He said in part: "Criticism for Sabbath violations, he declared. 'The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath.' Must not every institution and every social set-up continually submit to this test: What is it doing to human personality? His own relatives said that he was out of his mind, and the scribes said that he was possessed by Beelzebub."

"Criticism for omitting certain religious ceremonies, he replied. 'It was about you hypocrites that Isaiah prophesied so finely. In the words, "This people honor me with their lips, yet their hearts are far away from me." He referred to their methods of evasion of religious and moral responsibilities, saying, "You have many such practices."

"Did not Jesus mean here that the chief end of religion is to 'promote the general welfare' and that any procedure that fails in that is spurious religion and should be rejected? Most of those stalwart defenders of our American constitution who about most loudly for it because they think it will maintain the statue quo, entirely forget that basic provisions of the preamble, to 'promote the general welfare' is it not the spirit of Jesus that constitutes and governs our nation and its economic systems are of value only as they 'promote the general welfare' of all the people?"

Dr. Dunning announced that he will continue the exposition of Mark next Sunday evening, which has been designated as "men's night."

PUBLIC MARKET PERMIT DENIED BY TRUSTEES

Acting on the recommendation of a committee, the city council last night denied the application of Harry W. Bedford, of the National Service Exchange, sponsors of Tradex, to conduct an open air market on Third street between Birch and Ross streets.

Councilman Fred C. Rowland, speaking for the committee, reported that an exhaustive investigation had been made into the proposed market, the Long Beach open air market, and various other phases of the proposition. He said that a conference had been held with representative business men but that sentiment had not been favorable.

Bedford's plan was to have open air stalls where members of the Tradex group, and others, could sell their home grown wares for Tradex and cash. The market would be operated three mornings each week under his plan.

Councilman Plummer, who moved to deny the application, with William Penn making the second. The vote was unanimous.

Action Deferred On Requests for Poultry Markets

No action was taken by the city council last night concerning the opening of two poultry markets on South Main street, following the referring of the matter to the planning commission and a later decision to have a special committee investigate the applications.

W. J. Smith applied for permission to open a wholesale and retail poultry market at 1209 South Main street while Mrs. Mary Foster sought permission for the Taylor Poultry Market to operate at her property at 927 South Main street.

The planning commission reported that if the businesses were merely retail, there would be no objection but if slaughtering was conducted, it would be in violation of the zoning ordinance.

Mayor E. G. Warner appointed Councilman Fred C. Rowland and William Penn to investigate the applications and report back to the council next Monday.

COUNCIL ISSUES CARNIVAL PERMIT

Under the sponsorship of the American Legion, Post 131, Santa Ana, a carnival will be presented in this city by the Crafts Great Shows from November 13 to 18, it was decided by the city council last night in granting an application from the Legion.

Commander J. B. Castex said that the Legion had made a thorough investigation into the show company and would guarantee a worthwhile and desirable performance.

COUNCIL NOTES

The query of Harry C. Fulton of Talbert concerning the leasing of land from the joint outfall sewerage district was referred by the city council to a committee of the city engineer, city attorney and outfall sewer board of directors.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Rice, 324 East Chestnut street, made application to the council last night to sell jams, jellies and marmalade from her home. The planning commission made no recommendation, since no zoning was involved, so Mayor E. G. Warner delegated Health Inspector E. E. Frisby to interview the applicant and explain state laws concerning selling of such commodities. He will report back next Monday.

Councilman A. F. LeGaye was

GOOD WEATHER AT ISLAND RESORT NOW

The most gorgeous weather is enjoyed at the island during the fall and winter months, when warm sunshine floods its hills splashed with crimson holly and waters that are yet a deeper blue."

An announcement by Alma Overholt pointed out today.

Since October 1 the Hotel St. Catherine is operated on the European plan. Meals are served a la carte in the dining room.

Badminton and tennis courts, ping-pong tables and various lawn games provide outdoor activities in the hotel gardens, while miles of bridle trails lead into the scenic interior of the island and make horseback riding a favored sport at Santa Catalina. Every visitor to the island is a member of the Catalina Country club and privileged to play over its sporty 18-hole golf course. Practically every outdoor sport may be enjoyed at Santa Catalina at this time of the year.

P. T. A. Will Show Antiques, Relics

Advance plans for a showing of antiques and relics of early days, together with a puppet show, were revealed at the city council meeting last night with the granting of an application from the Parent-Teacher association to use the Powers Memorial museum on October 26.

The performance and showing will be during the afternoon and evening and a small admission will be taken to cover the costs of collecting the relics, according to Mrs. W. E. R. Crawford, president of the group.

not present at the meeting last night and will be gone several weeks on a vacation trip to the northern part of the state.

J. C. Metzgar, secretary of the Republican headquarters, was granted permission by the council to use Birch Park for a political meeting on the night of October 13 at 7:30 o'clock. William Penn moved to grant the application and Fred C. Rowland made the second. It was carried unanimously.

ENJOY DEEPER TRUER COFFEE FLAVOR

By HARRY GRAYSON

DETROIT, Oct. 9.—More elaborate chain store systems are certain to be the result of the St. Louis Cardinals' sensational eleventh-hour drive to their fifth National league pennant and world series in nine years.

There have been complaints against Bredon, Rickey and Co. spreading out like an octopus, but it has more or less been proved that the subsidizing of certain minor league clubs by major out-fits has saved a number of smaller leagues from total collapse.

The New York Yankees are the only big-time baseball body competing with the Cardinals on the way to an equal footing in the matter of farm, Cleveland, Detroit, Washington and Philadelphia of the American league, and Chicago and Brooklyn of the National, have minor league connections.

Cincinnati is going in for the idea in a large way, and the Boston Red Sox are throwing out lines. The flop of the Chicago White Sox largely was due to neglect of officials to keep up with the times. There were no strings to pull when talent was needed badly.

COMPLETE CHAIN GANG

If you don't happen to know, the Red Bird organization controls Rochester of the International; Columbus of the American Association; Houston of the Texas league; Elmira of the New York-Pennsylvania; Greensboro, N. C. of the Piedmont; Huntington, W. Va. of the Mid-Atlantic; Greensburg of the Pennsylvania State association; Springfield, Mo. of the Western Association; and Martinsville, Va. of the Bi-State league.

There has been no drought on the Cardinal farms. Baseball men estimate that a dozen of their products who carried the desperate fight of the St. Louis club in 1934 would bring $550,000 in an open market. Take a peek at this list, and see if the back to earth movement doesn't pay in baseball. The prices are based on their ability and age.

Dizzy Dean	$150,000
Paul Dean	100,000
Joe Medwick	75,000
Pepper Martin	50,000
Jimmy Collins	50,000
Billy DeLancey	40,000
Tex Carleton	30,000
Jack Rothrock	15,000
Ernie Orsatti	15,000
Bill Hallahan	10,000
Burgess Whitehead	10,000
Pat Crawford	5,000
Total	$500,000

AND THAT ISN'T ALL

Not to mention the services that Bredon and Rickey have gotten out of their stars. Nor out of farm hands who have been sold outright or used advantageously in trades.

The Cardinals could sell the Deans, Medwick, Martin, Collins, DeLancey, and Carleton like Jerry wrote a note.

Now you know why the disappointed Bill Terry in August said that Dizzy Dean was worth $200,000. Terry and not a few others considered the former Arkansas cotton picker the finest pitcher they ever saw.

The St. Louis farms have produced some rare crops. The best, of course, was the '25 one at Houston. Dizzy Dean, Medwick, and Carleton. The '21 turnout at Rochester, with Martin

PLAY DON-POMONA TILT FRIDAY

NIGHT CONTEST TO BEGIN J. C. LEAGUE SEASON

One day earlier than scheduled, Santa Ana's Dons will begin defense of their Southern California Association and Eastern conference football titles against Pomona junior college's improved eleven at the Bowl here Friday night instead of Saturday. The change was made by Coaches Bill Cook of the Dons and Roy Rieckels of the Cossacks.

Rieckels' Bengals, who plastered the U. C. L. A. freshmen 46-0 last week, open against the Citrus Owls at Azusa. Chaffey's Panthers, who upset the strong S. C. Spartans, 7-0, but lost to the powerful U. S. C. freshmen 19-0, entertain San Bernardino in their Ontario field. Fullerton, defeated by Pasadena 3-0 but holding the stubborn Long Beach Vikings to a scoreless deadlock, receives the first-round bye.

The hottest race in the conference history is predicted. There is not a so-called "breather" on the '34 schedule, every club indicating sufficient pre-season strength to harbor hopes of winning the championship. Perhaps the most improvement has been shown at San Bernardino, where a new coach, ex-Trojan Bob Neish, has instilled a fighting spirit in a club far from mediocre. The Indians trounced Compton 13-6 the week after the Tartars eked out a 6-0 win over the Dons.

Pomona, much stronger than the club that received a 25-0 lacing from Santa Ana last fall, had made rapid strides under Rieckels, the former California star. With only a week of genuine practice, the Cossacks battled Urban military academy to a scoreless tie last Friday. Urban had trimmed a fair Santa Monica Jaycee eleven, 28-6, the preceding week.

A new substitution rule, designed only for the Pacific Coast conference and penalizing a team five yards for substituting when the game is in regular session, was revealed today as one of the reasons why Santa Ana lost to the U. S. C. Frosh 7-0. Without penalty, substitutions can be made only when regular time-out periods have been called by either team.

Unaware the new ruling was in effect, Cook substituted at a critical time on Santa Ana's 18-yard line, and the Frosh were awarded a first down to the Don 12, from where they scored their winning touchdown in six plays. The play was erroneously announced as an offside penalty.

Prior to a light workout at the Bowl yesterday, Coach Cook complimented his Dons on their splendid defensive showing against the Trobables. He was particularly well pleased with his ends—Ben Slavin, Paul Perinich, Walt Guntner and Frank Kroener.

Coach "Jeff" Cravath of the freshmen remarked after the game that these four were among the finest jayees ends he had ever seen in action. Cook was satisfied with the entire line of Norton, Landblade and Rogers, tackles; Tucker, Lukens and Nowotny, guards; Roemer, Yorba and Martin, centers.

The weakest spot on the team appears to be at right half, where better blocking is needed. Ranga Bob Phipps is doing a fair job, but unless improving, he may be replaced by Quarterback Bob Mitchell. Cook complimented Walt Hickman on his handling of inside half. Although capable of a better game, Wilburn Anderson did well at fullback. Ralph Comstock and Bruce Harnots were others complimented.

FULLERTON INDIANS GIRD FOR WHITTIER

FULLERTON, Oct. 9.—Scheduled to play their first league game in three years Friday, Coach Dan Crickshank began serious preparations for Don Douglas' Whittier Cardinals, their first Football league opponents.

Though Whittier has never beaten Fullerton on the gridiron since 1917, there is always a first time. The Cardinals, with Mike Arrambide, sensational back, are rated as one of the favorites of the Football league.

In 1921, under E. Y. Johnson, now at Huntington Park, the Indians won the Football league title without losing a game. They were held to a scoreless tie by Muir Tech, also considered a contender for the 1934 crown.

With Burbank, whom Fullerton defeated 45 to 6 last year, shifting its athletic affiliations to the San Fernando Valley league, Whittier, Fullerton, Muir Tech, South Pasadena and Hoover of Glendale form a six-team league.

NERVY COCHRANE CAN TAKE IT BUT HE COMES UP TO SEVENTH GAME WITHOUT PITCHER 'GENERAL' CROWDER TOUGH GUY

BY HENRY M'LEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

DETROIT, Oct. 9.—The man who knows about such things as his private telephone number so, at an hour when nothing should be stirring, not even a left-handed pitcher, we called Mickey Cochrane.

The number belonged to the private room of a hospital, for it was in an institution of mercy, with his right knee packed in ice, that the Mick spent the night before the most important day in his life.

It was spend it there or not play today, for the Mick took an awful beating yesterday. Al through the sixth inning, he was a tough guy, but he lost some of his power, is a tough baby. He didn't campaign all over this man's globe with the army for nothing. In his tours through China, France, the Philippines, and almost all the other spots on the globe, he learned to give it and to take it.

They say that Frisch is going to throw the very south-side Hallahan in there for his dough, but I'd like to risk a dime on the chance that when the party starts the very Dizzy one—yes, of Jay Hanna Dean himself—will be in the firing pit. The Deans are money boys. Daffy proved that yesterday when he stood out there and shoveled that garden pea they call his fast ball up to the plate and said:

"Swing hard boys! It looks better from the grandstand. But honestly, you're just wasting your time."

Furthermore, he stepped into the fastest one Rowe has thrown all year for a single and the run that won the ball game.

It looks like it's in the Cards, to me. And for my five bucks, too. (Copyright, 1934)

DOG-EAT-DOG WORLD SERIES HAS CLUBS READY TO FIGHT

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

DETROIT, Oct. 9.—John J. McGraw sat in the press box at Valhalla today awaiting the outcome of the 1934 world series.

McGraw, personification of strife on the diamond, was hanging on every pitch, every hit, every move made by the Cardinals and Tigers. And sitting with him were Dick Gleason, dynamic leader of the old White Sox; George T. Stallings, miracle man of 1914; Frank Chance, peerless leader of the Chicago Cubs of over 25 years ago, and every other ball player and manager who has passed on beyond the "Great Divide" without understanding what the words quit, surrender or crawfish meant.

The last chance of the Cardinals for baseball's highest honor was let by Frankie Frisch, discovered and schooled by McGraw, and he never did a better job. The Tigers may whip the Cards, but they'll never conquer Frisch.

Against him is Mickey Cochrane with three spike-wounds in his legs, hurt and limping, but fighting back with every ounce of his strength.

Against him is the Cardinals' greatest pitcher, Walter Johnson, who has been let by Frankie Frisch, discovered and schooled by McGraw, and he never did a better job. The Tigers may whip the Cards, but they'll never conquer Frisch.

VICTORIES FOR COUNTY LEAGUE FAVORITES SEEN

BY WILLIE Q. PRYOR

As far as side-line experts are concerned, this week's Orange county league engagements are cut-and-dried propositions that even a brain truster could figure. So pronounced is the difference in the teams that the results might easily be posted without playing the games.

If the youngsters didn't need the exercise for their gym credits, Newport Harbor might be credited with a victory over Garden Grove; Tustin, having a win over Brea-Olinda; while Anaheim is chalked up with a comfortable triumph over Huntington Beach, and Orange given an overwhelming victory over Valencia.

Newport Harbor is the "dark horse" of the league. With a strong forward wall and a speedy backfield, the Sailors are out to give the league favorites a thrill or two before the season is over. Behind expert blocking and splendid interference, the Sailor backs can have against Valencia, scoring three times, 23 to 0.

Although extended by Orange, the favored Tustin eleven should not find much difficulty in taking Brea-Olinda's Wildcats into camp Friday. Tustin always has had an Indian sign on Brea-Olinda, and this year should be no exception with Stewart S. Smith just able to muster enough players together for a varsity eleven.

The crippled Huntington Beach Oilers should offer little opposition to Anaheim's powerful smooth-running attack, which stopped the defending champions, 13-5, last week. Dick Glover has two equally strong eleven which he can substitute freely without affecting the strength of his team.

"Listen, Jim," Glover said to the silver-headed veteran of the Anaheim press, "Don't make us the favorites any more. We go against Huntington Beach next week."

Maybe it isn't good psychology, but nevertheless Glover's Oilers are favored to take the Oilers by two touchdowns. Huntington Beach suffered numerous casualties, losing at least a man in every game. If they shell many more players, it is doubtful whether they'll finish the season.

Though Clarence Bishop, youthful Placentia mentor, has a fighting eleven, inexperience will tell on them when they tackle Stewart White's Orange Panthers, who outplayed Tustin last week in everything but scoring. Bishop admits that his boys were scared to death in their initial start against Newport and didn't get going until the final period, when an intricate passing attack netted them six first downs.

BURT KIDD CATCHES EYE OF COLLEGIATES

FULLERTON, Oct. 9.—Taking advantage of a bye while the remainder of the conference swings into action, Coach Art Nunn plans to revamp the Yellowjacket offensive and defensive tactics this week when he sends his squad against the San Diego Junior college here Sunday afternoon.

With Burt Kidd, left-footed punter from Anaheim, averaging nearly 60 yards in kicking, the Yellowjackets have a marked edge over most of their conference opponents. Local fans call Kidd the longest punter on the Pacific coast.

It is certain that the major colleges' loss in failing to sign the 18-year-old Anaheim booter is the Yellowjackets' gain. Northwestern and mid-western colleges are already following his activities. If Kidd can hit the ball as he kicks the piskin Nunn may lose Kidd next year.

That the "Jackets" will play a waiting game, depending primarily on their left-footed kicker, was seen at Long Beach last week when the Hornets first changed their tactics. Since Nunn took over the Yellowjacket coaching reins in 1928, the Swarm played wide-open football, coupling a hard-running game with an aerial attack.

From end to end, the Yellowjacket line is much stronger than last year's. Don Maxson, Anaheim, is the only freshman in the front line. At center, he and his understudy, Wayne Pryor, are the lightest linemen, both weigh 160.

With another practice game under their belts, the Yellowjackets will present a stellar defensive organization against Chaffey Oct. 20.

Angel Players Make $210 In Series Win

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—(UP)—Twenty-six Los Angeles baseball players received $210 each today as the winners' share of the gate receipts of their post-season series with an aggregation of Coast League All-Stars.

The Angels closed the series by rapping out a 4-3 victory for their fourth win. Carl Dittmar's home run in the ninth captured the decision.

As the losers, the All-Stars received $122 each. Twenty stars participated in the split. Total gate receipts were $9206, including tax.

ENDS, TACKLES HAVE SPAULDING WORRIED

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—What the Bruins have in the way of a defense to go with their improved offense will be demonstrated Saturday against Montana in the Coliseum when U.C.L.A. plays for the first time since its one-sided defeat by Oregon at Portland two weeks ago.

The problem in the north was tackles and ends, Oregon rolling up all but a few yards of their total through those positions. As far as the tackles go Coach Bill Spaulding is fairly well fixed, with experienced men in Sam Storey and Sam Stawlsky and some promising but green sophomores in Carl Olson, George Dickerson, Joe Denis and John Hastings.

Ends are the critical problems—for the first time, incidentally, in Spaulding's ten seasons with the Bruins. Injuries will keep out Sinclair Lott and Bob Schroeder, first and second string right ends, and throw the burden on Julian Smith against Montana and possibly against California next week. A shortage of material will prevent shifting strong players from other positions to the wing.

THREE PARTIES OBSERVE 25TH WEDDING EVENT

YORBA LINDA, Oct. 9.—The studio home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Seamans was the scene of a series of three parties Sunday given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Seamans on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary. More than 500 neighbors and friends paid their respects to Mr. and Mrs. Seamans.

Mrs. Edwin Speckman, Mrs. M. J. Hammond, Mrs. J. W. Murray were responsible for the beautiful arrangements of flowers that filled the rooms. Mrs. R. C. Corcoran decorated the table, and three groups of hostesses assisted with the serving of dainty sandwiches and tea.

The afternoon group, from 1 to 3 o'clock, included members of the O. E. S. and Masonic organizations and many neighbors. Among these guests was Miss Millie Douglas, daughter of the minister who read the wedding ceremony. Guest artists for this early party were the Rev. Joseph Reese, baritone; Mrs. Rose Mallott of Costa Mesa, soprano; Miss Francis Sheppard, pianist; Miss Elsie Moore, contralto; and Vladimir Lenski, violinist.

More than 200 attended the party from 3 to 5 p. m. Artists were Mrs. Robert Russell, leader; Miss Moore, Mrs. Mallott, Stanley Kurtz, baritone, Miss Sheppard and Lenski.

The group attending from 7 to 12 heard Miss Genevieve Townsend, pianist; Robert Townsend, violinist; Mrs. J. B. Horner, soprano; Mrs. Kathryn Filcher and Miss Brown, dramatic readers; Miss Sheppard, Mrs. Alda Reddick, readers; Benjamin Edwards, baritone, and Lenski.

Dr. Gilbert Brinke of Pomona welcomed the group in the evening, and Madam Ellen Beach Yaw closed the program by singing one of Mrs. Seamans' compositions, "Sweet Wedding Song," and "Home, Sweet Home," and reciting "God Bless This Home."

SCHOOL TRUSTEES CONSIDER SITE FOR VALENCIA HIGH AT SESSION NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

PLACENTIA, Oct. 9.—A site for the new Valencia high school will be considered at the adjourned meeting of the Placentia board of education Friday night, it was decided Monday night.

Several pieces of land are under consideration. Meeting as a high school board the members agreed to subscribe to certain magazines; to purchase 40 lockers at $3.53 each and 10 at $4.04 each; to make a survey of where teachers live and to investigate how other high schools of approximate size handle injuries to athletes.

A report of Ralph Essert, superintendent, revealed that approximately 800 will attend the benefit milk fund football game Friday between Orange and Placentia at Placentia. Arrangements for the bleachers on the grammar school ground for the day were considered. It was agreed to attempt to borrow Fullerton bleachers. The first $50 of the receipts will go to the athletic fund.

A report on the activities of both high school and grammar school orchestra and band work was brought by Frederick Rupp. He said enough have signed up that by using advanced seventh and eighth grade pupils in high school work, he can organize two bands, one elementary and one high school, and two orchestras, one elementary and one high school, and a beginners' class.

The board took no action on his suggestion that the school purchase instruments under a policy of loaning on rental basis for one year and sell to the student who wished to purchase after that. On motion of Buell Beard, it was agreed to investigate further that method of handling instruments.

A question concerning placing of the school building from Rancho Santa Ana on the La Jolla site was considered. Part of the building was placed yesterday.

Lyon said he washed his hands of the policy being adopted on admittance of students to Bradford school. He said that the policy of the board has been, in the past, to draw no racial lines, and the work has been handled satisfactorily for more than 12 years.

He said many complaints have come to him concerning the present situation of limiting attendance but that he would not bring it up for decision for a while, giving Superintendent Essert a chance to work it out the way he preferred.

Tustin Schools Use Same Busses
TUSTIN, Oct. 9.—Tustin grammar school children are enjoying a somewhat shorter school day. This was brought about through the inauguration of a plan to haul both high school and grammar school children on the same busses, thereby avoiding duplication of routes and providing better service for children.

CLASSES FOR ADULTS OPEN NEXT MONDAY

NEWPORT BEACH, Oct. 9.—The Newport Harbor Union High school has received approval of a project for adult education classes, to be financed with SERA funds, according to an announcement made today by school officials. Classes are scheduled to commence next Monday at the high school, and will be held on week nights, excepting Friday, throughout the school year.

An attempt is being made, Sidney Davidson, high school superintendent, said, to provide class instruction in subjects which will be of advantage to those living within the high school district. These include navigation, agriculture, practical mathematics and popular science.

It is hoped, Davidson stated, to add other subjects, such as oral English and dramatics, if teachers who can meet the SERA qualifications are found within the district, and there is sufficient interest in the subjects to form classes.

The announced class schedule will be as follows: Agriculture, Monday and Wednesday from 7 to 9 p. m. Mr. Shade in charge; every day mathematics, Monday and Wednesday from 7 to 9 p. m. under Mr. Kidder; navigation, Tuesday and Thursday from 7 to 9 p. m. Mr. Kidder; popular science, Tuesday and Thursday from 7 to 9 p. m. under Mr. Shade.

Costume Concert Given at Laguna

LAGUNA BEACH, Oct. 9.—A select audience of music lovers attended a costume concert given Saturday night at the Community playhouse on Ocean avenue, featuring Vera Newcomb, well known lyric soprano, in a program, arranged in five different groups of songs, accompanied by Nellie Schwankowsky, pianist.

Well received were several selections from the "Gay Nineties" group as well as several Fisher songs. The outstanding numbers, as well as dramatic talent, were "Hopak," a Russian song, written by Moussorgsky, and "Cry of Rachel," the rendition of which was greeted with prolonged applause.

FESTIVAL GROUP POSTPONES ELECTION UNTIL NEXT MONTH

LAGUNA BEACH, Oct. 9.—Featured by a marked difference of opinion as to representation on the board of directors, statements having been made that the various art groups of the colony have no voice in the affairs of the organization, was the annual meeting of the Festival of Arts association of Laguna Beach held last night at the chamber of commerce offices. The meeting was adjourned until November 19, when a new set of directors and officers will be elected.

The first business to be taken up was the reading of a condensed report submitted by John Gibson, treasurer, showing that after balancing receipts and disbursements, there is a cash balance of $488.41, to be set aside as a reserve and working fund for next year. Total receipts amounted to $3952.65 and disbursements $3464.24. Receipts included $2589.47 from ticket admissions, $101.33 from sale of programs; $592.40 from membership fees and donations; $147 from the costume ball tickets; $261.50 from rent of booths, and $108.40 from sale of costumes. Howard G. Helsler, now serving as a director, submitted a recommendation that the various art groups in the community be represented on the board. He mentioned the Laguna Beach Art association, the Music Lovers' club, and the Garden club. He also suggested that the business interests be represented by the chamber of commerce, with two members on the board.

Dr. David E. Hoffman suggested the present board be re-elected for another term. This proposal was vigorously opposed by Helsler, who declared that while the undertaking goes under the name of Festival of Arts, the present board has been composed of five business men and two artists.

A motion was adopted authorizing the president to name a nominating committee of five members, which committee is to bring in a list of not less than 14 names of persons representing various art groups and civic organizations.

Buell Beard's department read the 100th Psalm; Nadine Goren and Carol Pealim read "A Sparkling Thought" and Mrs. H. E. Renthorne's department recited some memory work.

ART SHOW AT LAGUNA DRAWS MANY VISITORS

LAGUNA BEACH, Oct. 9.—Attracting much attention from out-of-town visitors, as evidenced by admission figures, is the new October-November exhibit at the galleries of the Laguna Beach Art association on Cliff drive, which, according to opinions of local artists, is the best ever housed in the art colony.

Last Saturday and Sunday the galleries were visited by a large number of art teachers from Los Angeles and other Southernland communities as well as by many artists. Out-of-town visitors included Business L. De Saint Mart, of Pasadena; Mrs. Jane Andersen, director of educational exhibits, Sacramento; and Laurence Vail Coleman, of the American Association of Museums, Washington, D. C.

Much credit is due Clarence Hinkle, second vice president of the association and chairman of the exhibition committee, inquiries at the curator's office revealed, for the success of the present show. Included in the collection in the main gallery are some highly prized canvases by nationally known painters, including those exhibited by F. T. Johnson, James Swinerton, William Wendt, Eugene Savage, Dean Cornwell and Aaron Kilpatrick.

Made the subject of much favorable comment is the first exhibition of one-man shows, located in the lower gallery, featuring pastels by William A. Griffith, of Laguna Beach; water colors by Thomas Craig, of Upland and Los Angeles, and the etchings by Henri De Kruff, of New York and Los Angeles.

Fred, Carl and Sidney Waterman. Interment was made in the family plot in the El Toro cemetery.

The UNKNOWN BLOND

BEGIN HERE TODAY
On a stormy November evening David Bannister meets a pretty blond girl and offers her a lift in the cab in which he is riding. Her handbag opens and he sees a revolver inside.

Next morning Bannister reads that Tracy King, orchestra leader, has been found dead in his apartment. Police are searching for an "unknown blond," who visited King the night before. Bannister, remembering the girl in the taxi, is puzzled.

He sees her again that morning. The girl tells him her name is Juliet France and swears she knows nothing of the murder. He agrees to help her and she agrees.

He goes to see his old friend, Jim Paxton, editor of the Tremont Post, and asks him to work on the King murder case for the Post. Later he returns to the hotel to see Juliet France and learns she has disappeared.

Bannister goes to see the room in which King was killed and finds an object which he puts in his pocket. Mrs. Kennebec, who lives in the hotel, tells Bannister about the King murder case and how she saw Melvina Hollister, spinster, who lives in the apartment below King's. Bannister takes a car downtown, pulls out his pocket the object he found in King's room.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

further and Link's coming had prevented that. He looked at the bottom of the card and read, "Swann Studio," in flowing gilt script. Below in smaller letters was the name of a town he had never heard of, located in another state. A wedding picture made 30 years ago by the photographic artist of the Swann studio. Why had Tracy King kept such a picture?

For several moments Bannister looked at the two faces. Then he gave it up. There was certainly nothing in that old photograph to give him any information about Tracy King's murder. Nothing whatever. He slipped the picture back into his pocket and thought that, as an amateur detective, he was probably the world's worst.

Still he had the story of Melvina Hollister's quarrel with King. Apparently the police had not heard of that. Not that Bannister himself considered it important. Probably Mrs. Kennebec had exaggerated the whole thing, as women are likely to do who have little to occupy their time except gossip. Melvina Hollister might be a disagreeable neighbor but if she was sane enough to manage business affairs, as Mrs. Kennebec had admitted she did, she wasn't crazy that she would commit murder because of a dead canary bird.

Furthermore, Rajah was thoroughly alive. If Miss Hollister wanted vengeance for her precious bird, why wouldn't it be more natural to kill the cat? On the other hand, Bannister reasoned, the story might have its importance. It helped to piece together the background of Tracy King's life during the past few days. Practical detectives, he knew, always tried to do that. They considered every detail, almost as though they were fitting pieces of a jigsaw puzzle, then went to work, fitting the details together. Bannister felt rather proud of himself. He had something with which he could go to Captain McNeal now and say, "Here's a tip I picked up that may be worth looking into."

The photograph in his pocket, on the other hand, wasn't worth mentioning. He'd keep that to himself.

Bannister was thinking of McNeal and the tip he had to offer him when another thought interrupted. It had been a tip for McNeal that had sent Bannister walking downtown that morning, the plague question whether or not to tell the detective about the girl in the taxi. Bannister smiled wryly. Well, she had been a slick one and he had fallen completely for her guile! He had fallen so completely that, looking about Tracy King's rooms an hour or so earlier, he had actually searched for the memorandum she had said she lost there.

What nonsense! As though he didn't know every word she had spoken was false!

"And if you found it," Bannister berated himself, "I suppose you'd have kept it for her." Well, there was no note there. There never had been such a note.

The car jolted to a halt to let a passenger off. Bannister noticed that they were on a street lined with low, rather dinky looking shops. In five minutes more they would reach the business district. The sky was getting dark now. It must be well after five o'clock.

He glanced at his watch. Right—it was almost 5:30. For the first time Bannister remembered that he had not eaten since morning.

How long ago that seemed! "I'll have to call Aunt Kate," he told himself. "Better do it first thing. I'll tell her not to expect me for dinner."

Now that he had gotten into this thing he hadn't the faintest notion of stopping. He would go first to the Evening Post office to find out what had happened in his absence. Maybe Paxton would be there. He felt the intense necessity of "chinning over" the day's events. He was still behind on many of the details of Tracy King's death and wanted to ask questions. Gainsay or Cunningham could tell him what he wanted to know.

The car turned into a wider street. Shop windows were already lighted and made the sky seem darker. Night had descended with the turn of that corner. This was downtown Tremont—a thoroughfare on which ranged several small dress shops; a furniture store; a chain grocery store with a red front and another painted green; a second-rate hotel and a huge vacant building. Ahead brighter lights and larger electric signs indicated more prosperous concerns.

Bannister rode two more blocks, then left the car. The newsboy on the nearest corner was shouting unintelligible cries from which the word "murder" could be distinguished. Bannister bought a Post and walked on.

The black type across the first page of the newspaper declared, "Scourlah Denies King Murder." There was a photograph of a man walking beside a policeman, shielding his face so that it could not be seen. That, no doubt, was Scourlah. There was a photograph of a letter and, grouped below, were pictures of Carlotta Scourlah and Denise Lang and a larger one of Tracy King. The photographs took up a good part of the page, but at the left in two-column measure, set in large type, was an account of Herman Scourlah's arrest and his denial of the crime.

At the top of the column were the words, "By J. Randolph Gainsay." Bannister read hastily as he walked. There was nothing that was new to him in the story except the facts that Scourlah was a plasterer by trade, that he and Carlotta had been married for two years and that they had lived at an address on Waverly avenue.

In another column Bannister read, "Search Continues for Missing Blond." There was nothing new beneath that headline either. A description of the girl wanted in connection with the King murder, so the account read, had been broadcast to city and county authorities throughout near-by states. Her apprehension could be only a matter of hours now. Still—there was not the slightest clue of her whereabouts.

"She's a slick one," Bannister reminded himself, and thought that the hollow feeling that came over him must be due to going without his lunch.

He turned into the Evening Post building. The elevator was not in sight so he climbed the stairs. Two flights. His breath was coming in deep puffs when he reached the top. After all, he certainly wasn't as young as he had been.

He pushed through the gate erected to keep bothersome visitors from the editorial department. The place was half in darkness, lighted only by two low-burn, green-shaded lamps. For a moment he thought there was no one there. Then he made out two figures—a man bending over the drinking fountain in the corner and, at a desk, crouching awkwardly behind the open pages of a newspaper—Gainsay!

Bannister felt a rush of jubilation as he crossed the floor. "Hi there, Gainsay!" he called. "How about going out to have something to eat?"

The younger man shifted his legs from the table to the floor, varied the angle of his felt hat. "Suits me," he said without a change of expression. "Where'd you want to go?"

In a small restaurant two blocks away they found a table for two. Gainsay, who had had little to say during the walk to the restaurant, leaned forward.

"I went out to see that Scourlah dame after you left," he chuckled. "I'll say I did!" The reporter's face was suddenly animated. "And what a story!"

for consumer goods, though there cannot be any question about the wisdom of INVESTING money for the maintenance of property in a good condition of repair, or even changes needed to keep buildings up-to-date in appearance and salability. Special Officer Suspended Pending Investigation

FIGHT BASIS OF CHARGE BY POLICE CHIEF

Following conflicting stories of a fight at Chestnut and Main streets early Saturday morning, in which Special Police Officer Frank Lockhart fired one shot from his revolver, the city council last night approved Chief Floyd Howard's recommendation that Lockhart be suspended from the force pending a further investigation of the case.

Lockhart appeared before the council in his own defense in opposing Howard's action and declared that he was following his line of duty as a merchant patrolman during the fight with John Starkey, cafe employee, who resides at the Y. M. C. A. Lockhart said he intended to sign an assault warrant against Starkey and that the matter was now in the hands of the district attorney's office.

Following a detailed discussion of the case and the introduction of police reports by Howard, it was agreed that should the district attorney's investigation clear Lockhart, his commission and badge would be returned without delay.

Although witnesses tell varying stories of the fight, it was established that Lockhart and Starkey had an argument in the cafe shortly before 2 a. m. Saturday, and later fought on the sidewalk. Lockhart admitted striking Starkey on the nose and later firing his pistol when the heavier man threw him to the sidewalk and injured his shoulder. No one was injured by the shot.

Lockhart contended that he was assaulted by Starkey and defended himself with his fists and gun. Starkey told officers, according to police reports, that Lockhart waited for him outside and then jumped on him. Starkey admitted that he had been drinking but said he was not drunk, the records stated.

The discussion came to a climax when Councilman Fred Rowland said that acting on Howard's recommendation, he would move

Destruction Left in Wake of Japanese Typhoon

Pictured here is the destruction left in the wake of a great typhoon which on Sept. 21 swept the heart of Japan, killing more than 2500 persons and leaving millions in damage. Soldiers and sailors are shown in inundated Kyoto streets, where more than 500 buildings were felled and hundreds killed.

Typhoon Levels Famed Shrine

Graphic conception of damage caused by the great typhoon which swept over the heart of Japan Sept. 21, killing thousands, is given in this picture of the wreckage of the famed five-storied pagoda of Shitennoji Temple. The structure, a unit of one of Japan's most famous shrines, was blown down in Osaka, where more than 4000 buildings were wrecked in the great wind.

THANKS EXPRESSED BY VETS IN HOSPITAL TO CITIZENS OF SANTA ANA FOR REMEMBRANCE

Appreciation for the donations of jellies and jams by residents of Santa Ana in a recent drive staged by the Santa Ana Legion Auxiliary for the benefit of disabled veterans confined in the government hospitals was expressed in a letter received yesterday by Mrs. Fannie Reeves of the Legion Auxiliary, from G. A. Olin, commander of Lonnie Boyd post No. 238, American Legion, U. S. Veterans hospital at San Fernando.

"These home-made delicacies are greatly appreciated by the veterans who unfortunately have to spend long periods of time endeavoring to regain their health," Commander Olin said.

"We were informed that these goodies were donated by many of the good citizens of Santa Ana and we sincerely appreciate their generous thoughtfulness and we extend many thanks.

"Acts of this kind make us feel that although we are partially isolated from contact with many friends, we are not forgotten. The spirit which prompted this act does much to assist in keeping up our morale and courage. In closing may we wish you all success and happiness."

WITMER OPENS DRIVE ON LAND-FILING RACKET

A sweeping investigation concerning an asserted land-grant filing racket has been opened in Los Angeles by federal officials, under the leadership of Paul B. Witmer, former mayor of Santa Ana, who is federal land registrar in this district.

The move to curb the land swindles gained momentum this week when Attorney Williamson S. Summers, now serving a sentence in the Orange county jail, indicated that he would aid the authorities in filing criminal charges in the state courts against persons suspected of influencing land hungry residents to make application for homesteads on old Spanish-Mexican grants.

Witmer stated today that Summers had supplied him with valuable information concerning the activities of the men engaged in charging for applications for lands which the United States supreme court has held are not open to public entry. Summers was recently freed on charges of mail fraud but was then sentenced to eight months in jail and a $1000 fine for violation of the income tax laws.

Witmer has conferred frequently with Summers at the jail here and although refusing to divulge the information he secured, said that "It formed a mighty interesting story and should be of valuable assistance to us in our plan to prosecute the men engaged in the racket on charges of obtaining money by false pretenses."

WELL KNOWN ARTISTS WILL JUDGE ENTRIES IN AMATEUR CAMERA USERS EXHIBITION

Judges for the exhibit of amateur pictures by Santa Ana camera users to be staged tomorrow and Thursday at the Ebell club were announced today. F. W. Cuprien of Laguna Beach, noted California artist, Hazel Bemus, Santa Ana art instructor and Harriet and Mignonette Walker, illustrators and painters of Placentia, will act as judges.

The judges will select first, second and third awards, as well as honorable mentions. They also will select the 10 winners whose pictures will be sent to Chicago for the national exhibition and contest. One of the 10 will win a silver cup, while others will get ribbons. While the local pictures will be on display Wednesday and Thursday, the awards will not be given until Thursday evening.

With the judges, members of the cast in the play "The Blue Hat," to be given by the drama section of the Anaheim Y. L. L. will be guests at a dinner and meeting of the Photo-Arts club of Southern California which will be held Thursday evening in the Ebell Peacock room. Guests attending the exhibit may also attend the play and entertainment to be staged.

Joe Wilson, of the De Luxe Photo service, who will act as host, invited the public to attend the event.

SHOW SURPLUS IN BUDGET AT QUARTER CLOSE

Evidence of the healthy financial condition of the city was given last night at the city council meeting when City Auditor Lloyd Banks reported that there was a surplus of $3817 over budgeted allowances during the first quarter of the fiscal year, ending September 1.

Banks also showed that because of the close supervision over city expenditures, it will not be necessary to ask for an advance of taxes from the county to carry the city expenses during the period from now until January 1, when the first apportionment of 1934-35 taxes is made.

Under the division of revenue other than taxes, Banks revealed that receipts were $58,559.01, as compared to the estimated budget amount of $54,886, leaving a surplus of $3,673.01. Expenses dropped from the first quarter apportionment of $71,882 to an actual total of $71,785.61, leaving a surplus in that respect of $144.94.

The total apportionment for special funds, which includes water, park and planning commission, was $19,316, while actual expenses were only $19,168.35.

One of the main sources of unexpected revenue was from the water department, where $15,388.17 was secured instead of the expected figure of $14,570. The general fund showed an increase from the budgeted figure of $14,570 to $15,588.17 and the street funds registered an increase of $286 to $323.20. Motor vehicle funds, which represent fines collected in police court, dropped from the estimated revenue of $1500 to an actual total of $1467.50.

Definite action to curb "fly-by-night" photographers and others who enter the city during holiday seasons to secure the profitable trade was taken by the city council last night with the passing of an emergency ordinance setting up a license fee for all solicitors and employees engaged in this practice.

The measure was given first reading several months ago but was not brought up again until last week, when E. W. Cochems appeared before the council on half of the organized photographers. He explained that many outside firms, often using the coupon or merchant order scheme, took legitimate business away from established local photographers who paid license fees.

The ordinance, as drawn by City Attorney Clyde Downing and passed by the council, provides that each person, firm or organization engaged in the business of profession, trade or occupation of portrait of commercial photography, must pay an annual license of $12, payable in advance. Further, each person, either as principal, agent or employee, who solicits, must have a separate license. The ordinance provides that no person, firm or corporation may issue coupons or merchants' orders.

Violations of the ordinance will constitute a misdemeanor, punishable by either a $500 fine, six month jail sentence, or both. The new statute will be effective following one publication so that the licenses must be paid before the annual Christmas season.

Opposed to Sinclair and all of His Dangerous "Isms"

- There is no Democrat on the ballot for Governor of California.
- We must choose between a life-long Socialist attempting to masquerade as a Democrat, and a life-long Republican who makes no such pretense, but is honestly what he is.
- We oppose Sinclair because he is a trickster who changed his party a few months ago for political expediency.
- We oppose him because he had no moral right to become an unwanted interloper in our party.
- We oppose him because of his radical following, indicating he is still a Socialist and not a Democrat.
- We oppose him because his fanciful dream of ending poverty cannot be fulfilled and would only lead to chaos and disaster.
- We oppose him because his election would be an invitation to all penniless unemployed and relief chisellers from all other states to head IMMEDIATELY for California.
- We oppose him because he misleads the public into believing the American system should be changed, when the only change needed is in the hearts of men. The system is still O. K.
- Under Merriam our homes, our jobs, and our investments are safe, and we maintain our constitutional rights and liberties, while recovery progress is being rapidly made.
- Under Sinclair, no job or property would be safe, business would be demoralized, and the resulting influx of radicals and penniless unemployed from other states would jeopardize the peace and economic security of the entire state.
- Sinclair alone could not wreck the state, but Sinclair and a million more unemployed could.

Officers Are Installed In Connection With Dinner and Dance

Guests from San Diego and from Hollywood who rank high in department activities of the Eight at Forty joined Orange county members for their official installation of officers, held Saturday night in connection with a formal dinner and dancing in La Casa Trabuco. Among the visitors were Bertha Reeve, a chapeau departmental passe, who with her husband, Dr. Reeve, motored down from Hollywood for special part in the ceremonial, and Bessie H. Cooper of San Diego, la demi chapeau departmental, who was installing officer.

Dinner was served amidst appointments stressing the deep red of Eight at Forty colors. Amusing balloon figures were favors at places for the men, while large silvered button moulds supporting clusters of tiny red flowers, were favors for the feminine diners.

Installation which followed the dinner hour, was conducted by Mrs. Cooper, introduced by Mrs. Kay Rasmussen, retiring from the office of la petite chapeau after a pleasant and successful year.

Duly installed were Polly Curnutt, la petite chapeau; Edna Fransen, first demi chapeau; Gladys Young, second demi chapeau; Tess Halber, la surintendante; Ellen Reeves, l'archiviste; Anne Leimer, la concierge; Rose Melott, l'aumonier; Alice Hebron, Frances Sullivan and Mae Beningsdorf, pouvoir; Blanche Young, secretaire et caissiere.

Before dancing was introduced, Mrs. Curnutt as her first official gesture, presented Mrs. Cooper with a handsome vase in lacquer red, the gift of the organization. To Mrs. Reeve was then delegated the pleasant duty of congratulating Mrs. Rasmussen upon her year in office, and presenting her with the chapeau passe pin which she is now entitled to wear. In responding to this, Mrs. Rasmussen took opportunity to dwell upon the fine work during the year, of Miss Gladys Young as secretaire et caissiere, and gave her an envelope containing instructions for the selection of the beautiful cape which is part of the organization's uniform. To Mrs. Reeve, the retiring officer presented a candy jar in deep red.

Mrs. Valley Reviews Current Books and Political Situations

Omitting the controversial subject of the California political situation from her talk, Mrs. Jack Valley appearing yesterday before Santa Ana Ebelle society in the first of her season's local engagements, discussed national and international affairs as a prelude to reviewing books of current interest.

The three subjects of outstanding national significance are NRA the labor situation and relief, she declared speaking in passing of the 422 codes developed under NRA with the consequent list of over a thousand specialists and innumerable lesser employees to administer NRA regulations under these codes.

Labor she declared to be the greatest threat to adjustment of present economic ills, while as for relief, with 20 million now accepted for the next year at least, was very depressing. She ended her exposition of the national situation by quoting Hopkins to the effect that "An economic system must take care of its victims."

In selecting a list of books for review, Mrs. Valley started with J. B. Priestley's "English Journey," declaring it to be the finest book yet coming from Priestley's pen, and presenting a fine picture of rural life in England. James Warburg's "It's Up to Us" she described as an entertaining exposition of national affairs written by a Wall Street banker. The humor pervading the book was suggested by her quotation regarding the NRA policy, declared by the author to be "like a man attempting to walk east with one foot and west with another."

"The Coming American Boom" by Angus completed her group of non-fiction reviews.

Lawrence Sanders' "The Woman She Was" was accorded high praise for fluidity of style, phraseology and cleverness in working out a plot by the contrary method of beginning with the death of the chief character and then working backwards through her life.

"Five Silver Daughters" by Golding, she also gave high praise especially for its maintenance of the importance of characters against the tremendous background of Russian communism, World war conditions and post-war inflation and depression in Germany and Great Britain.

"The Ballads" by Alec Waugh, ("The best thing he has ever done") and "Good-bye Mr. Chips" by James Hilton, painted with glowing colors, completed her group of British authors, more significant in their contributions to the autumn books she declared than were American writers.

"So Red the Rose" by Stark Young, she cited as worth reading if one could overcome its over-romantic trend. "Stars Fell on Alabama" (Carl Carner) is notable chiefly for its vivid descriptions of the country; "Dusk at the Grove" (Samuel Rogers) paints exquisite word pictures but the author never deals with action suggested by the plot's setting and makes his characters most exasperating in their futility; "The Foundry" (Albert Halper) is stark realism that is entrancing after a reader gets directly into the story; "Portrait of a Doble" (Charles Caldwell) gives a moving picture of San Francisco and "Love Song" by Rupert Hughes, was characterized as the finest piece of fictional writing ever done by the author, with an enthralling story and a fine knowledge of music.

"The Ballads" by Alec Waugh, ("The best thing he has ever done") and "Good-bye Mr. Chips" by James Hilton, painted with glowing colors, completed her group of British authors, more significant in their contributions to the autumn books she declared than were American writers.

YOU and your Friends

Mr. and Mrs. Norman McClay, 116 North Sycamore street, had as guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Warburton of San Diego. Other recent guests of the McClays were Mr. and Mrs. M. F. McClay of North Hollywood, Mrs. Norman McClay was Miss Jessie Warburton.

Mrs. Marie Turley and Miss Helen Marie Turley, 1904 Heliotrope Drive, were week-end guests at the Hollywood Plaza hotel, Hollywood.

Mrs. Charles W. Hyde Jr., is confined by illness to her home, 201 West Twentieth street, and indications are that it will be some time before she is able to resume her desk at the Commercial National bank travel bureau.

Miss Kathleen Holmes, a student at Lipson's School of Designing in Los Angeles, and Mrs. Ing relief, she declared the outlook for the next year at least, was very depressing. She ended her exposition of the national situation by quoting Hopkins to the effect that "An economic system must take care of its victims."

In selecting a list of books for review, Mrs. Valley started with J. B. Priestley's "English Journey," declaring it to be the finest book yet coming from Priestley's pen, and presenting a fine picture of rural life in England. James Warburg's "It's Up to Us" she described as an entertaining exposition of national affairs written by a Wall Street banker. The humor pervading the book was suggested by her quotation regarding the NRA policy, declared by the author to be "like a man attempting to walk east with one foot and west with another."

"The Coming American Boom" by Angus completed her group of non-fiction reviews.

Lawrence Sanders' "The Woman She Was" was accorded high praise for fluidity of style, phraseology and cleverness in working out a plot by the contrary method of beginning with the death of the chief character and then working backwards through her life.

"Five Silver Daughters" by Golding, she also gave high praise especially for its maintenance of the importance of characters against the tremendous background of Russian communism, World war conditions and post-war inflation and depression in Germany and Great Britain.

"The Ballads" by Alec Waugh, ("The best thing he has ever done") and "Good-bye Mr. Chips" by James Hilton, painted with glowing colors, completed her group of British authors, more significant in their contributions to the autumn books she declared than were American writers.

"So Red the Rose" by Stark Young, she cited as worth reading if one could overcome its over-romantic trend.

Home on Memory Lane Lends Setting For Pretty Ceremony

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Trumpy on Memory Lane was setting for a quiet wedding Sunday, October 7, when their daughter, Miss Catherine Trumpy became the bride of Rodney Leonard, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Leonard, also residents on Memory Lane.

Three o'clock in the afternoon was the hour set for the ceremony, at which the Rev. Frank E. Lindgren, pastor of Calvary church, officiated. Many flowers, with yellow and white chrysanthemums, dahlias and larkspurs predominating, were arranged at an improvised altar massed with greenery.

The couple entered the room to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Mrs. Lindgren. The bride wore a peacock blue afternoon frock with a corsage spray of Talisman roses and gardenias.

In cutting the three tiered wedding cake to be served with ice cream and punch, the new Mrs. Leonard used the knife which had been her grandmother's as a bride. Miss Thelma Trumpy, another daughter of the home, and Miss Hazel Leonard, sister of the bridegroom, assisted in serving from a table brightened with baby chrysanthemums and larkspurs. There was a touch of pink in the bouquet to match the cake decorations.

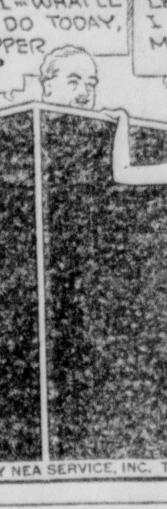

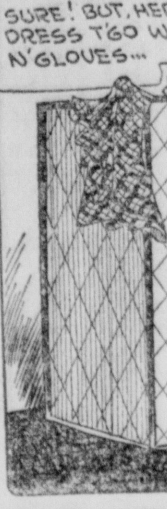

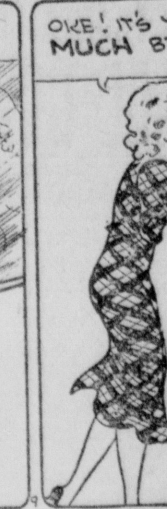

Both Mrs. Jay Trumpy and Mrs. D. P. Leonard, mothers of the young couple, were gowned in green crepe. For traveling, the bride donned an ensemble and accessories in navy blue. She and her husband left for a northern honeymoon trip. Upon returning they will make their home on West Orange road, where Mr. Leonard is engaged in ranching. He graduated from Orange Union High school in 1929, and his bride completed her studies at Garden Grove High school in 1931.

Present for the ceremony with Mr. and Mrs. Jay Trumpy and their daughter and sons, Miss Thelma and Joseph, Hugh Peter, Clarence and David Trumpy, were Messrs. and Mesdames N. H. Leonard, D. P. Leonard, Joe Moore, Miss Hazel Leonard, Michael Witt and the Rev. and Mrs. Frank E. Lindgren, Santa Ana;

"Why did you put on baker clothes?" we Scouty asked. "Gee, goodness knows you all look very cute. I wish that you could bake a bit."

"I certainly would like some lunch. The rest would, too. I have a hunch. Most any good food served to us would make a great big hit."

"Well, you are going to get your wish. We'll shortly bring you all a dish of very tasty flapjacks," one man answered, with a grin.

"Just follow us and you will see just how good fine flapjacks can be. A little bake shop is nearby, and we will walk right in."

The Tynmites trailed along behind and Duncy asked, "When will we find the bake shop that you speak of?" Right away, came the reply.

And, sure enough, the shop appeared, and all the Tynmites were cheered, when one wee baker said, "We'll soon have cakes for you to try."

And then the cakes were quickly made. Soon Duncy said, "I am afraid that I have eaten all I can. Don't make me any more."

When all the rest had had their fill, they plopped right down and sat real still. "We're going to

While all the Tynmites slept real sound, the little bakers hustled 'round and mixed a batch of cupcake dough. They planned a big surprise.

Into the oven went the cakes. "I'm mighty glad this oven bakes real fast," a baker said. "The cakes will be of monstrous size."

The Tynmites were wakened when a wee man cried, "Get up, tots!" Then, as Coppy rubbed his eyes he said, "What's happened to this place?"

"The oven door just opened wide and then a cupcake came outside. Just look at it, you Tynmites, it has hands and feet and face."

GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP WOULD MAKE FOR RETURN OF CONFIDENCE

Four thousand applications for loans, mostly from western mining interests, have been filed with the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Jesse Jones, the head of the R. F. C., says that very few of these have been accepted, because of the nature of their securities.

We should imagine this to be true. If they have the proper kind of securities for the mining proposition, it is doubtful they would have to appeal to the R. F. C. There is money enough now available everywhere, that is, everywhere where there ever is money, so that those desiring to borrow can easily be accommodated, providing there is certainty of repayment.

This is probably the point at which there is a change made from the old condition. Today the return of the money must be almost a legal and practical certainty. Formerly the return could be a probability, and a loan could be obtained.

Business return has already really outrun confidence. Confidence is more tardy in returning than business itself. And the very ones who were preaching to the people that they must have confidence and leave their money in the banks, instead of hoarding it, seem to be the ones today, the doors of whose minds are securely locked against confidence.

We don't know as we blame them so much, but still we must remember that the government came to the rescue when the confidence of the people had gone. And now when both by the law which guarantees the money in the bank up to $5,000 for the depositors, and returning prosperity, should give the creditor group a high degree of hope and expectation, we feel that their sportsmanship should make it possible.

No hurricanes or floods should be scheduled for October. All the Red Cross people will be away at a convention in Tokio.

JUGOSLAV KING AND FRENCH FOREIGN MINISTER ASSASSINATED

The news of the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou of France, has just been flashed over the wire from Marseilles, France. The foreign minister of the French republic and the king were riding together when the bullets of an assassin took their lives.

It is too early to know what political significance, if any, this tragedy has. But the fact that one of these men was the responsible head of one of the four governments that have been united together in the "Little Entente" and the other the foreign minister of the largest and most important of the nations of this group, whose duty it was to cement and keep these nations together, is an extremely striking fact.

The feelings for war more recently have been rather allayed. None of the European nations are in any position to finance a conflict and certainly the experiences of the creditors have not been such as to inspire any wild and frantic lending to any nation.

But even at that the passions of a people like the French can be so aroused by such an incident, if the motive of the assassin can be traced to potential or historic enemies, that the wherewithal for war would come as a matter of course.

It is to be hoped that this will not be the case.

We have just learned, by further dispatches, that the assassin was one of King Alexander's own countrymen, belonging to the group that opposed his dictatorial methods. This certainly will not be cause for any serious conflagration between nations.

These munitions men apparently have for their slogan: "Let's you and him fight."

ITALY'S CHILD SOLDIERS

Reports and pictures from Italy reveal thousands of boy soldiers marching to military music and being trained in military tactics. Nothing can come from such a campaign of militarism except to nurture the military spirit. As a practical measure of military defense or of military efficiency such a movement is nil.

The wars of recent times have proved that in the long run it is not massed troops that win a war, but economic resources. A country with great resources is more apt ultimately to win against a country with greater man power but with less resources.

Italy is not a country with great natural resources. Alone, she could not expect to be able to wage a long war. Her activities in the World War were not such as to give hope of much better results in future wars.

Those who recall the rout of the Italians by the Austrians at Caporetta, when it required an immediate pouring in of allied troops from other countries to save Italy from falling before the Austrians, cannot see that the training of boys in military maneuvers is of any great consequence.

In fact, such a promotion of the military spirit among the people of a country may work its undoing. That was fully shown by the collapse of the empire of Louis Napoleon during the Franco-Prussian war.

France had been thoroughly militarized. Louis Napoleon was forced into a war by the cries of the people, which he might have known would lead to his downfall and the break-up of his empire. Mussolini may learn the same lesson if he persists in his military propaganda among his people.

HAUPTMANN INDICTMENT VOTED

"The wheels of God's justice move slowly." Bruno Richard Hauptmann was yesterday indicted for the kidnap-murder of baby Charles Lindbergh by a Hunterdon county, New Jersey, grand jury.

It has been a long and doubtful road that the agents of justice have had to travel, but finally, it seems, the cruel and heartless fiend, who committed this terrible deed, has been captured and is likely to receive his just deserts.

It is remarkable how all of the evidence has been brought together and classified. The habits of Hauptmann at one point, his handwriting at another point and his voice at another point, all dovetail to make a damning indictment and a complete case for his conviction.

Not only will the public be relieved in their mind that the circumstances indicate that the officials are well on their way to avenge the crime, but all fathers and mothers, everywhere throughout the United States, can breathe a little easier by reason of the apprehension and the likelihood of conviction of the perpetrator of this deed.

There are only one or two unsolved kidnaping cases now that have occurred since the federal law was passed. It is unfortunate that it has reached the point where we must depend mainly upon federal authorities for the apprehension of those guilty of certain kinds of crimes.

But maybe we should have turned to such authority long ago. With the means of communication which we have and the means of rapid transportation, state lines have been used as aids to the criminal, but in such times as these, they have the united country with which to deal.

Raymond L. Haight is the Best Man For Governor

Sacramento Bee

Several correspondents have written The Bee asking it for championing the cause of Raymond L. Haight of Los Angeles against the candidacies of Frank F. Merriam and Upton Sinclair.

Practically all of them take the ground that it is the duty of this paper to give its support to Acting Governor Merriam, first, because he won the Republican nomination, and second, because they claim that in urging the electorate of that part of California in which it circulates to vote for Haight, it is endangering the election of Merriam and by the same token increasing the likelihood of the election of a rabid Socialist, now masquerading as a supporter of the New Deal.

To all such statements, this paper can make only this response:

For itself and for those who believe that sound, honest and progressive government for the next four years is essential to the welfare and the happiness of the State of California, there is nothing of hope in the candidacy of either Frank F. Merriam or that of Upton Sinclair.

If one represents the extreme of fantastic Utopianism, the other equally is the mouthpiece, the symbol and the living exemplar of extreme Toryism.

And so far as this paper is concerned—and it believes there are hundreds of thousands of thinking men and women in California who thoroughly agree with it—it refuses to have upon its conscience the responsibility of aiding or assisting either one of these undesirables to be governor of the State of California.

It cannot support Upton Sinclair because he has announced that his first act as governor will be to pardon the notorious dynamite Tom Mooney; and further because his so-called plan to end poverty in California is so alien to sound judgment and so contrary to practical common sense that even to attempt to set it up in California might bring financial chaos and political confusion.

Moreover, in nothing that he has written, said or done has Upton Sinclair shown the slightest understanding or comprehension of the administrative duties he would be called upon to assume as governor. He is wandering around in the clouds of his own illusive theories, or chasing the will-o'-the-wisps that have nothing more to do with the practical problems facing the next governor than the vagaries set forth in Alice in Wonderland resemble the realities of every-day life.

Nor can the candidacy of Frank F. Merriam be viewed in any more favorable light.

What he promises to the people of the state is a replica, only more so, of the administration of Friend W. Richardson, when the humanitarian, educational and administrative boards of the state were sacrificed ruthlessly to make a corporation holiday.

Frank F. Merriam today owes his position in the politics of the state to the fact that he has been the legislative errand boy for the power companies, the Better America Federation and other such influences and cliques that are licking their chops with anticipatory glee in expectation of favors to be received at the hands of the Merriam administration.

Nor can any good citizen forget that Frank F. Merriam, as speaker of the assembly, was a chief member of the Richardson wrecking crew; and that while he now professes to be a Progressive, the interests and the corporations that are guiding his campaign and filling his sack never have done one act or said one word in favor of Progressivism, but have fought it at every turn and today are determined to knife it to death at the hands of Frank F. Merriam.

Fortunately, the manhood and the womanhood of California can say in all good conscience: "a plague on both your houses."

In the candidacy of Raymond L. Haight, they are presented with the opportunity of electing a governor who will be progressive, but not impractical; who will be his own man, not the tool of the power companies; who has a platform that stands on its own bottom and a comprehension of the problems of the ordinary men and women of the state that shines forth like a beacon light in this day of doubt and confusion.

That he will fight for what he believes to be right Raymond L. Haight already has proved in his public career in Southern California.

And he is at that time of life when his outlook is still forward, not backward; and he also has the physical courage to carry forward the arduous duties that will be placed upon him.

Why should not such a man, so infinitely superior to both of his opponents, be elected governor of California?

Why should the thinking, independent and progressive majority stand by and let either a rank reactionary or an even ranker radical be seated in the gubernatorial chair?

Against that alternative The Bee proposes to fight with whatever weapons it may command until election day.

And to that fight, it summons all who feel that California should be saved alike from the reactionary rule of Frank F. Merriam and the chimeras of Upton Sinclair.

A FRIENDLY CAUTION

My dear Mr. Dittmars: I learn with delight that, after a long weary quest, Your ambitious soul Has achieved its high goal, And your spirit may now be at rest. We have all aspirations, and yours is a sort In which I could never partake, However, old lad, I'm exceedingly glad That you now have a bushmaster snake.

No doubt every morning you'll stroll past the cage Where the creature sits, dour and malign, And observe: "See that wretch Of malevolent teeth? Every one of them mine, yes, all mine. Have a look at those fangs, they could butcher an ox. See that hatred that gleams in those eyes, Note the lunge of his head As he leaps from his bed And destroys a whole covey of fies!"

Every man to his fancy; for long you have sought This monster, whose every breath, As he glides here and there With his head in the air, Suggests a swift, horrible death. May your days be made happy by gaining this prize, Which to me, would be very small use. But, in closing, R.D., I implore you to see That the dreadful thing never gets loose.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLEN FRANK

THE PRESIDENT RECONSIDERS

I was enormously cheered by several sections of President Roosevelt's talk to the nation by radio some evenings ago.

Despite the fact that I have given freely of time and energy to fight, with such weapons as are mine, for the broad objectives of re-employment, a wider spread of purchasing power, a stabilization of the banking structure, and so on, readers here and there have taken me drastically to task for not having swallowed the New Deal whole.

In particular I have been drubbed by readers for having insisted upon the fallacy of price fixing and production curbs. From the very outset of the New Deal I have been convinced that these measures were measures of rank economic reaction under the auspices of political liberalism.

Now, as the President moves into the next phase of the life of the NRA, he suggests that there may be serious question of the wisdom of these measures. This suggestion is, I suspect, the prelude to their elimination.

Between the lines of the President's address is the suggestion that the panic retreat from our economy of potential plenty, which some in the President's official family have fostered, may be stopped.

In an otherwise vivid and venturesome administration, this element of economic defeatism has been, to me, incomprehensible. It has been a dangerous blind spot in the New Deal.

I have felt so keenly the reactionary nature of certain economic policies of the New Deal that, at the cost of sacrificing a much needed vacation, I spent the sweltering days of the summer just closed writing a brief book on what seem to me these crisis points in national policy. I called the volume America's Hour of Decision because I am profoundly convinced that a continuation of artificial price lifting and artificial restriction of production will bring us to a new economic crisis in which living standards for the masses will be beaten permanently down to a new low level.

Nothing could make me happier than to see new reversals of these policies that would make unnecessary the sort of book I have written.

"Yes, so I heard. What do you suppose is the matter?"

"Haven't the latest idea. They're close, those Brights. Too bad for the old people. They must be very lonely."

"Well, I suppose that's what we must all expect. When they get so they can be of a little help away they go. The ingratitude of children is terrible. It's enough to make one declare they'd never own one."

Let us think a little. Children are going away from home and family as soon as they are born. Every day's growth takes them further along the road that leads away from home and out toward the horizon. If the children did not grow into self sustaining men and women, self sustaining in body and soul, their parents would be broken hearted. Then why not accept this going away when it comes and separates children and parents? It was to be expected, and it was desired. Why then fret about the inevitable, especially when we would not lift a finger to retard it?

Kathleen was twenty-five years old. She was graduated from college and had a job. Like many other young people of her age and condition she found home rather dull. She longed for change and adventure and experiment. The experimenting would be easier if it was shielded from the critical eyes of affectionate parents and relatives. An apartment in town was appealing. She packed up and established her residence there after a gradual breaking away from the home, leaving a tearful mother and a sad faced father in the lonely house.

There was a short sharp argument before she went. Her mother reproached her for going, her father said, sharply, "Let her go. We don't want anybody here who doesn't want to be here." It is easier to leave home in a thunderstorm of reproach and denial—so Kathleen marched out, flags flying.

The two old people felt the loneliness more and more. They wished Kathleen would at least write. Then they wished she would call on the telephone just to say she was well. That's all they wanted of her. Just to know she was well. They couldn't write or call after what had happened. They watched the mailman come and go. They hated to leave the house lest the telephone ring in their absence and they would miss Kathleen's call. Months passed and no word. The old house felt as though a funeral had just passed through its doors and the two old people felt just that way.

"Why don't you invite her to come to Sunday night tea, mother, just the way you'd invite any other friend to come in? If she won't come any other way, maybe she'll come that way? Invite her and tell her we're having no company, just herself and anybody she likes to bring along. If she knows we won't claim her, maybe she'll come." said father, who had reasoned it all out in long walks in longer evenings.

So that is how Kathleen came home, as a guest. As a guest she was treated. Mother received her at the front door, escorted her to the guest room, waited for her in the living room, and soon led the way to the tea table where they talked of impersonal things until time for her to go. "I've had such a good time," said she. "See you next week, folks. Anything you want from town, mother? Just drop me a line if there is."

They grew up that way—and by and by, they return, and this time they stay in spirit, if not in person.

The Richland Walnut Growers' association of Orange anticipated a fine year following the successful trial run given its new packing house. The entire plant and its machinery, except the conveyor and the house was typical of the most modern plants in Southern California. The company expected to handle about 50 carloads of walnuts during the season.

E. W. Carnfield, R. K. Bishop, J. W. Morrison of Orange; J. J. Schneider of Placentia, and E. M. Crawford of Olive, appeared at the city hall to take examinations for the post of county horticultural commissioner. State examiners, A. T. Garey, E. B. Collier and E. K. Carnes, were to make their reports within 20 days after which the board of supervisors would choose from among successful candidates.
